TWO KILLED BY ELECTRICAL FREEZER GAS

Danbury, Ct., Oct. 14.—Frank W. Force, 55, and his 9-year-old grandson are dead and Mrs. Force is critically ill due to gas escaping from an electrical refrigerating system in the Martha Apartments, a new five-story apartment building on Main street, opposite City Hall. The family had moved into an apartment on the fifth floor yesterday. The medical examiner said asphyxiation apparently had been caused by escape of methide through a loose cap screw in the electrical refrigerator.

Florida Is All Right. Chicago's Great Street. League Founder, No, Thanks.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company.

SAMUEL DAVIES WARFIELD renders a great service to Florida by publishing the truth about that State, and correcting exaggerations.

The Seaboard will run all of its trains regularly. Damage to the railroad was slight, and is repaired.

IF YOU ARE interested in Florida do not be disturbed by that tornado any more than you would have been by the recent tornado in Denmark, had you thought of moving there.

"The wind bloweth where it listeth," and the Earth shakes more or less everywhere. It will take more than one big wind to discourage Florida.

THIS WEEK Chicago's State street, heart of the city and center of retail business, celebrates with a three-day illumination festival, the spending of $100,000 on a new lighting system.

State street will now be the most brightly lighted thoroughfare in the world. In addition to being the greatest retail street

MRS. CURTIS GUILD IN APPEAL TO 'WETS'

Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of the former Governor, and herself a staunch Republican, today, as a member of the Constitutional Liberty League, backed up the league's appeal to members to vote for wet candidates, irrespective of party.

Branding prohibition in its present form as "stupid and unenforceable," Mrs. Guild in a statement declared the Republican party must break its connections with the "fanatics of the Anti-Saloon League."

Mrs. Guild said: "I agree with the executive committee that to cure the evils brought on by the present stupid and unenforceable prohibition law, is the most important domestic problem in our country today. To my mind it is the real issue of the present campaign.

"The Republican party, of which I have always been a loyal member, must break its connections with the fanatics of the Anti-Saloon League now, while there is yet time and put this question, if possible, out of politics before the next presidential election. The only way to do this, is to make it plain that this connection is a losing one."

DEATH OF FLIER CHUMS LAID TO INEXPERIENCE

Aviation officials at Mitchel Field declared today that inexperience in making landings was the cause of the airplane crash in Port Jefferson, L. I., harbor, which took the lives of William H. Preston, Jr., of Belmont, and Henry R. Perru of Taunton.

It was announced that the two young aviators had not completed their three years of flying service required for full pilot commission, and had lost control in attempting to land on a narrow strip of sand at the harbor entrance.

It is understood the War Department will order a board of inquiry. Preston was alive when taken from the water, but expired shortly.

The young men, who were second lieutenants, had been chums from boyhood, classmates at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, brother air reserve officers and as such were inseparable in death.

They were completing their annual fifteen days' tour of duty at Mitchel Field, and were returning from a successful flight to Boston. Only a few hours before the crash, in passing over Taunton, the plane was dipped over the house at No. 34 Madison street, where Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Perru, parents of one of the aviators, waved greetings from the lawn.

Something went wrong and the

HUNT MAN IN BOAT UPSET

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 14 (A. P.).—Death followed an evening of pleasure for two women who had been entertained on a yacht in New Haven harbor, their bodies being found today on the beach where they had been cast by the tide.

A man, Barney P. Hawco, widely known as an expert stage rigger, who had been a companion of the women at the party, was missing and the police believed his body was in the water between the float of the New Haven Yacht Club and the yacht Capsum of Oyster Bay, L. I., which was anchored a hundred yards off shore. Hawco's hat was found on the sand near the body of one of the women.

MARIE OMITS DAILY 'DIP', DINES ON YANKEE FOOD

Aboard S. S. Leviathan, Oct. 14 (U.N.S.)—Queen Marie of Rumania is suffering from a slight cold.

Although members of the Queen's suite stated that the cold was insignificant they said that the Queen wants to take no chances on arriving in the United States indisposed and for this reason she abandoned her plans for a morning swim and also refrained from exercise on the decks.

The queen lunched in the general dining room with Mrs. Coolidge, Wilson and the menu was of typical American food.

When in America do as the Americans do is to be Queen Marie's slogan and for a good start requested that real American meals be served her beginning today.

The royal request caused a furore in the big ship's galley where all of the cooks are graduates of the best European schools of culinary arts. The situation was saved by Chief Steward Billo Linth, who handled the food problem for thousands of American Doughboys during the World War when the Leviathan was a troop ship. Linth will personally cook Queen Marie's American luncheon, which today consisted of chicken a la Maryland, corn fritters, candied sweet

FIN. COM. SAYS MAYOR MUST ACT ON 'GRAFT'

"Sincerely up to Mayor Nichols for action, is the report made to the Finance Commission of alleged graft in connection with labor done for the Boston Park Department, according to Chairman Charles L. Carr of the commission.

"If Mayor Nichols doesn't act we will get busy on the matter again," said Carr in a statement today. "Just now we are marking time, awaiting his action."

District Attorney O'Brien, to whom it was recommended be referred certain phases of the report, said that he cannot act until the matter is officially brought to his attention.

A boy milkman in Roxbury, the Finance Commission charges, was awarded the contract for supplying milk with labor. He is Delbert A. McFadden, "about twenty-two years old," as the report discloses. An uncle of McFadden, it was alleged, was deputized for young McFadden to supervise the work for which he contracted. This uncle was revealed today to be James S. Norton, who was retired from the police department six years ago for disability contracted in the line of duty, and who draws a pension of $900 a year from the city.

Norton is a special policeman in theatres and it is said he allowed his own twenty-year-old son to do the work assigned to him by

GORDON, UNDER GUARD, SLIPS TO COURTHOUSE

With a court officer and two deputy sheriffs as guards, Samuel J. Gordon, alleged wrecker of the Eagle Investment Association, was slipped into the district attorney's office today with none of the disorder that marked his same trip yesterday from Charles Street Jail.

Only a few women were in the courthouse corridors when Gordon arrived at the prosecutor's office, and these women apparently were not investors in the company for they exhibited little interest in his arrival.

Gordon was taken immediately into the office of Assistant District Attorney Callahan, where he is assisting in an examination of the association books.

The alleged "wrecker" collapsed in his cell last night at Charles street, but he showed no apparent effects today.

Mrs. Vincent Astor Named U. S. Envoy to Greet Queen

New York, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Vincent Astor, one of the youngest of New York's society matrons, won the honor of being special envoy to Queen Marie of Rumania when the Leviathan docks here Monday.

She was picked by Mayor James Walker for the task from more than a hundred "eligibles" for the role of eagerly sought.

The Queen will be met at the dock, by her own request, instead of down the harbor, as is usual with incoming royalty or other dignitaries.

Democratic to the greatest degree, the Queen expressed a desire to mail into port, just as her most humble subjects have done and gaze upon the Statue of Liberty from the deck of an ocean liner instead of being brought in aboard a special craft, with its many courtesy attractions to the scene unfolded to emigrants.

She has advised the Rumanian legation at Washington of her desire, also saying that Rumanian societies wishing to greet her arrival can do so more advantageously when the steamer is in dock.

Montreal Awaits Word of Queen's Visit

Montreal, Oct. 14.—Canada has not been informed officially that it is to be visited by Queen Marie of Rumania, now on way to the United States, it was stated today. The itinerary of the Queen, made public in Washington, had two days set aside for a Canadian visit, George A. Simard, consul general for Rumania in Montreal, said;

"I have not been officially informed that the Queen is to visit Canada, but needless to say we will all be very pleased if she honors us with her presence."

Marie Views America as 'Land of Wonders'

By MARIE, QUEEN OF RUMANIA.

Paris, Oct. 5.—How do I imagine America would look and seem—your wonderful, great America that I have read so much and thought so much about!

Rather a big order, to "see America," especially to one as many-sided as I, who would want to understand the social side, the professional and industrial sides, the science, the famed inventions, your art, your houses, gardens, your everyday life and the natural wonders of which I have heard.

Vast cities, seething town, your mountains, rivers, plains, lakes, waterfalls, your wilds and forests, your horse and cattle ranches and your beautiful tropical regions—South California, Florida, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Palm Beach—the very names sound fascinating.

EAGER TO SEE WONDERS.

There are so many other places, too, that I keep hearing about and seeing pictures of. I know on what a vast scale everything is. I long to see it.

Then, too, I have many friends all over the place—in New York, Washington, Chicago, Buffalo, Boston, Richmond, San Francisco, Detroit, Seattle, Portland—I cannot remember all the names.

But I have invitations in quantities, such pressing, loving, tempting invitations; some personal, others from various women's clubs and mass bodies, some from men of business who are my friends, describing interesting things for me to see, institutions to inspect, medical, scientific, recreative, religious, cultural.

"Oh, dear, I get quite confused when I think of it all!

HEARS CALL OF ROCKIES.

The name "Rocky Mountains" thrills me. And "Yellowstone Park," how wondrous that sounds—are the stones yellow? The Grand Canyon—breath-takingly grand, I am told. And those giant red trees in California; I want to see them. And that forest turned to stone.

I am a great reader of your American literature through a large range, from Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Zane Grey, Rex Beach to Edith Wharton, Gertrude Atherton and others, who have given me much pleasure and interest.

It is the too-much of it all, not the foodlike that frightens me.

I suppose one would have to sleep sometimes. Do you ever sleep in America?

"Seeing America" will be a test for endurance.

CHAIN STORE PROMOTER LEFT FAMILY PENNILESS

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 14 (A.P.).—Leonard R. Steel, founder of the defunct L. R. Steel Company, promoter of chains of five and ten-cent stores and other merchandising enterprises, left his widow and son without a dollar.

The accounts of the administrator of the Steel estate show that the promoter of millions left only $17.-293.13. Every dollar of this except $5,000 in law fees will go to Federal or State governments for taxes, Steels Federal taxes alone for 1923, his last prosperous year, amounted with penalties for non-payment, to $76,722.61.

GORDON HAS COLLAPSE

yesterday when a mob of women hurled epithets at him and threatened to mob him as he was escorted from the detention pen to the district attorney's office by. It so shaken the defendant that he suffered a temporary nervous breakdown. When friends called at the jail to see him they were informed he was too ill to talk to anyone and was suffering from a violent headache.

While Gordon was lending his aid to Auditor Pelde and Assistant District Attorney Timothy Callahan in the preliminary audit of the Eagle Association's books, headquarters detectives were dispatched on important missions, in connection with the case.

With the names and addresses of approximately 300 Eagle investors whose pass-books were turned over to Gordon or "sold" to him, as he claims, the detectives were endeavoring to ascertain the truth of his claim that the books were those of real living persons and not issued to "dummies," as has been alleged.

Further, the detectives were questioning these Eagle members as to whether Gordon had their names with, or without their consent in obtaining pass-books and later buying them in as trustee, and borrowing money on them for his own purposes.

Gordon has admitted to the Boston Evening American that his only wrong act was in withholding from the body of Eagle members, the fact that he "owned" or had control of 300 books of the 900 issued to members.

Assistant District Attorney Timothy Callahan stated that Gordon's statements concerning the books and accounts, as made Wednesday, were partly correct.

SAYS HE BALKED.

In many instances, however, the former Eagle president balked at furnishing full information, Mr. Callahan said.

All of the 300 pass books held by Gordon, including those issued to himself and members of his family, will be submitted to Mr. Callahan and Auditor Pride. They are now in the possession of Attorney I. Jacobs, Gordon's present counsel.

Concerning receipts from interest on loans by the Eagle organization, Assistant District Attorney Callahan said:

"Interest was deducted from the principal before the borrowing member received his check.

"Suppose he borrowed $1,000. The interest, figured at 8 per cent. for the year, was deducted, and the member received a check for $920.

"Payments on the principal were made weekly and the borrower at the end of the year had repaid the principal. Receipts from full interest therefore were instantly available for other loans on the day of the loan.'

"I would say that Gordon borrowed $100,000 on his many pass-books. What he did with the money is not of vital concern with us right now.

"First, our aim is to learn the association's present financial condition. Then we'll sift the matter of possible criminality.

"Today I informed Mr. Gordon and other officers of the crippled association that if we found no fraud or other criminal act or acts we will be glad to act accordingly."

Waved Greeting to Mother, Then Airplane Crashed

Taunton, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—A young man who dearly loved to show his home town some speed by feats of mechanical ingenuity today is dead after having realized yesterday one of his ambitions, to wave a greeting to his mother from his own circling airplane.

He was Lieutenant Henry R. Perra, of Taunton, who with Lieutenant William Preston of Belmont died when the plane they had flown from Mitchel Field to Boston dropped into Long Island Sound on the return journey.

After Henry graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1924 as an architectural engineer he went to New York to work where he joined the aviation R. O. T. C. He flew in Texas and Virginia and won his commission.

He returned to Taunton to join his father in the contracting business and allied himself with the New England fliers of the army reserve air force. For three years he waited and then yesterday accomplished the desired.

HARVARD SOCIETY PAYS DIVIDEND OF $70,000

The Harvard Co-operative Society has started paying dividends on last year's business and a melon of $70,000 was cut by 8,000 members of the society. The dividend is an increase of $18,000 over 1924-25. It means that the "Co-op" did a business of approximately $875,000. All purchasers are given 10 per cent. on their purchases and thousands of small items are not even registered by purchasers. The largest individual "cut" amounted to $87. Radcliffe undergraduates also were given dividends, as many of them are members of the society. G. E. Cole, '04, superintendent, supervised the payment of dividends.

1 DIES, BROTHER HURT, AS CAR HITS POLE

One man was killed and his brother escaped death by a narrow margin when their auto skidded, shattered an electric light pole and piled up on a stonewall on Jamaicaway, near Jamaica Pond, today.

The dead man is Edward Butler of Roxbury street. His brother, John R. Butler, of Marshall place, Newton, was thrown through the windshield, but escaped with cuts and bruises. The crash occurred on a curve on the road going around Jamaica Pond.

The two victims were removed to City Hospital in an ambulance. Motorcycle Officer Anthony Lucci found a registration paper in the car made out to John H. Flanegan of Brighton avenue, Allston. A police investigation was started.

Boston's new Park Commissioner, William P. Long, found that his first duty in his new position today was to enact the role of General Gage, British dictator in Boston in Revolutionary days.

The boys of Boston appealed to the Hilton to be permitted to play on the Common.

LOTTA'S NIECE LOSES IN JURY TRIAL APPEAL

Carlotta Cockburn of California, only remaining claimant to the $4,000,000 fortune that Lotta Crabtree, old-time Boston actress, left chiefly to World War veterans, was today denied a jury trial on her claims to a stage of a full hearing in court.

The court refused to overrule the decision of Judge William M. Prest of the Probate Court, who denied a jury trial. Any hearing on the California woman's claims must now come before a probate court judge sitting alone.

Appeal from Judge Prest's decision was based chiefly on the fact that Supreme Court Justice William Cushing Wait is one of the administrators of the estate. Counsel for Mrs. Cockburn contended that this tended to affect the handling of the case in the courts.

"There is no ground for the suggestion that the position of a Justice of this court is such as to overawe the judicial faculty of other judges or to cause their minds to waver in the balance," said the Supreme Court in its decision.

The high court declared that Justice Wait would not sit on any consideration of the case. It held that his being an administrator did not make the case unusual because it was manifestly impossible for judges always to escape being parties to court litigation.

Mrs. Cockburn claims to be the daughter of Jack Crabtree, brother of Lotta, and therefore a niece entitled to share in the fortune. There were originally seventy-odd claimants, but only one reached the stage of a ful hearing in court. This was Ida M. Blankenburg of Tulsa, Okla., who claimed to be Lotta's daughter and was declared in contempt of court after a sensation al trial.

STUDIES KEEP GIRLS BUSY

A college girl's life may be a merry one, but President Woolley of Mt. Holyoke College declares that the west girl undergraduate works too hard.

Instead of leading a life of luxurious leisure, the college girl does more work than the average business woman or shop-girl.

The discussion began when the question of advancing the hour of morning chapel was put to a vote at Mt. Holyoke. A majority wanted the services at eight. President Woolley vetoed the suggestion, stating firmly that 8:30 a. m. was early enough.

President Woolley pointed out that the rush and turmoil of a college career is wearing even as it is. "If the girls have another thirty minutes of their time taken away, it wouldn't be good for them," said President Woolley.

The college woman starts her day with a dash to chapel, a hurry call to breakfast and a few last cramming hours before she goes to classes. She may meet with a "quizz." If she doesn't she has to keep her mind on the job, taking notes and absorbing a lecture at the same time.

If "chem" or "physics lab" doesn't rain the afternoon, Miss College may be able to get in her athletics and then have some leisure. She must get in the athletics anyway.

Then nothing to do but study for a few hours, reviewing the work of the day and preparing the work of tomorrow.

FIN. COM. RAPS HUB CONTRACTS

McPadden. He was attached to the Back Bay division while on the Boston police force.

Also the accusation is made that McPadden had charged the city five per cent. for insurance of laborers, "but no insurance was ever taken out or paid for." This phase the commission's report recommends be turned over to the law department and District Attorney O'Brien for action.

The report also finds that in a number of cases the conduct of the Public Works Commissioner, James H. Sullivan, whom it does not name, but designates merely by his office, has been reprehensible.

Accusations are made against the department of "split" contracts and "favored" contractors. In some instances, the report charges, work has cost the city 100 per cent. more than it should, particularly in the construction of manholes and catch basins.

While 300 laborers on the Civil Service list have been waiting for employment from the city, the Public Works Department, says the commission, has hired later from contractors who charged the city a profit of 15 per cent., with other "incidentals."

The commission claims also that Warren Brothers Company was paid $8,533 for resetting 1,000 feet of newly installed high pressure water pipes. The pipes were installed by the C. & H. Construction Company and the contract called for this company to relay the pavement. This firm was never notified to do so by the Public Works Commissioner, the report charges, and the amount paid to Warren Brothers for the work was not deducted from the C. & H. Company payments.

Much criticism was made of the system by which contracts were given out for less than $1,000. All contracts of more than $1,000 must be advertised for bids. Contracts of less than $1,000 are not advertised. The commission charges that work is broken up into smaller jobs so that the contracts need not be advertised.

The report cites the case of Fred E. Bowes, who was awarded four contracts for manholes and catch basins. He was paid $3,768. The commission charges he got the contracts without competitive bidding, and asserts that the four contracts should have cost the city only $1,884.

The report also charges that John J. Loomis, brother of Michael H. Loomis, was given contracts to the extent of $12,668. These two brothers received, therefore, under unadvertised contracts, $19,565, which according to the estimates of the engineer of the Finance Commission involved 100 per cent. profit."

BIG APPLE CROP SWAMPS U. S.

Chicago, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—"Bring teacher an apple" may yet have to be resorted to as an emergency national slogan.

Reports today from the government Bureau of Agricultural Economics say that despite the 1926 estimated total production of apples has been reduced 3,500,000 barrels in the last month, the country still has the heaviest commercial crop known.

The new official forecast of market apples this season is 38,500,000 barrels, including 1,600,000 barrels in increase in Virginia compared with a year ago. West Virginia's crop is doubled.

STAY ACTION IN QUIGLEY CASE

Execution of the Atlanta penitentiary sentences of 18 months imposed in Federal District Court by Judge Morris on Sergeant Edward Hester and Officer Thomas Quigley, both of the Chelsea police department, will be stayed indefinitely today with the filing of their appeals to the U. S. Circuit Court here.

Quigley, brother of Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea; Isbester, Ned O'Keefe and Edward Carlon, the latter civilians, were convicted recently in the Chelsea rum conspiracy case and all received jail sentences at the hands of Judge Morris.

Counsel for the four men, together with Assistant U. S. Attorney Hubert C. Thompson, recently visited Judge Morris at his New Hampshire home, where they secured from him approval of the bill of exceptions required to bring the defendants' appeal before the Circuit Court.

"It may be a month, or it may be a year, before the appeals are heard," Attorney Thompson said today.

SIMON SWIG IN NEW CRASH

in Miami, where he announced that President William E. Walsh of Miami University was to be chairman of his board of directors, and Gael Coakley of Boston and others among his associates.

A "Charleston run" started soon afterward. Little by little deposits decreased from $1,900,000 to about $750,000 and finally a bank examiner was sent to make an investigation. He recommended a receivership.

In order to prevent an actual shut-down Miami business men rallied to the aid of the Tamiami Banking Company, which did a general commercial and savings business. They placed a clerk in one of its cages and supplied him liberally with cash so that all demands were met during the period of emergency.

BANK IS BOUGHT OUT.

Grave concern was felt by the local capitalists for a time as it was feared that the condition of the Tamiami might precipitate a general run on other banks. For this reason they pooled some of their resources to rescue the Tamiami Banking Company, but in spite of their precautions, several suburban banks experienced runs.

On Saturday the Tamiami Banking Company closed its doors with a receiver in charge. On Monday the doors were reopened, but over the week-end the name had been changed to the Equitable Bank & Trust Company. Business went on as usual, but Swig was out.

Formal announcement was then made that the new banking company had bought out the Tamiami, but because of the skillful handling of the transfer, the public did not learn the reason for the change until word gradually spread that Swig was no longer executive vice-president, the post he held officially in the Tamiami.

Swig's newest venture, the Franklin Savings Institution, he hopes to make the biggest savings organization in Florida, with a chain of offices in his principal cities, according to a recent announcement.

Simon Swig was a colorful figure in Boston finance, a field which he entered after years as a pack-peddler of linware. He organized the Tremont Trust Company, which was closed by the Massachusetts Bank Commissioner. Swig always maintained that the closing was the result of a conspiracy to force independent trust companies out of business.

Afterwards he tried to operate the Tremont Discount Corporation and he dabbled in real estate and other lines in Greater Boston. He went to Florida about a year ago.

Before going to Miami he engaged in a real estate and tobacco development in North Carolina, the Pinebluff Land Company, which failed.

One of his last business ventures here was his construction of a dance hall on Wollaston Beach boulevard in defiance of the wishes of practically all the residents of Wollaston. He fought for his permit, and obtained it from the Quincy city authorities, but the pretentious structure that he put up has been idle ever since, except for the first few weeks, when it was used for a ballroom.

Masefield Seeking N.Y. Barkeep of His 'Golden Dreams'

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—John Masefield is seeking Luke O'Connor, the bartender who befriended him when as an immigrant boy, thirty years ago he scrubbed the floor of a Greenwich Village saloon for food and lodging.

The poet arrived here with Mrs. Masefield to be the guest of Thomas W. Lamont, the banker. He found the Sixth avenue saloon razed and no trace of the kindly bartender who had no little part, he says, in making his "golden dreams come true."

BOAT UPSETS, 2 WOMEN DROWN

who had been left in charge of the craft since Monday, told police the women, whose names were unknown to him, and Hawco, who was his friend, had been aboard the craft last night and had left in the row boat to go ashore. He stayed aboard to remove traces of the party, and then had turned in for the night.

At this season the beach near the clubhouse is deserted. Today Captain R. H. Race and A. C. Miller, an employe, looking out of the clubhouse, saw the overturned boat. They went to it and saw close by a woman's nearly nude body, and some distance away another body. A man's hat was nearby. They went to the yacht, awakened Omondson and told him of theirgrefr.

He identified the bodies as those of the women who had been on the yacht. He also said his friend Barney had been in the boat and had undertaken to put the women on shore.

Police inquiry at Hotel Royal for Barney elicited information that while known as Barney, his name was Hawco, and that he had not returned to his room.

Coroner Mix ordered search for Mawco's body. He said an inquest probably would be unnecessary if Medical Examiner Scarbrough decided the women died of drowning when the boat overturned.

No one alone shore was found who heard cries. It was thick weather and the police were of the opinion that to carsman in trying to find with a high tide rolling in upset the craft and himself was caught by a wave and carried out into this harbor while the women drowned and the waves washed the bodies into the sand.

Awaiting instructions from the coroner the police did not inquire in detail into the party aboard the craft.

The medical examiner could find nothing about the bodies to aid in identification.

'Texas Bob,' Nephew of Nat Goodwin, Weds 8th Time

Los Angeles, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Robert M. Goodwin, 32, said to be a nephew of the late Nat Goodwin, much wedded actor, today married Elizabeth Marks, 19, declaring this his eighth trip to the altar.

Robert Goodwin, also an actor, uses the name of "Texas Bob" on the stage, and Miss Marks is a member of his cast. It was her second marriage.

200 NURSE INJURIES AFTER JAIL MUTINY

Media, Pa., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Order had been restored in Delaware county jail today and a number of the nearly 200 men and women prisoners who mutinied were nursing injured heads, legs and arms. Several other prisoners were shot, one in the head, with birdshot as guards and hastily recruited deputies battled with the inmates.

The jail, with only 65 cells, houses 196 prisoners, and many of the prisoners had complained of overcrowding and reductions in their food rations. Warden George E. Allen said that the complaints were justifiable, but did not excuse the outbreak.

HUB UTILITY FIRM PLANS $100,000 MAINE PLANT

Caribou, Me., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Work will be begun early in the Spring on a $100,000 power plant on the Aroostook River here by the Atlantic Public Utilities, Inc., of Boston, for its subsidiary, the Caribou Light, Water & Power Company, to provide better lighting service and water distribution. A concrete dam and reservoir, with a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons, will be built.

in the world, Fifth avenue, New York, not excepted.

"GIVE LIGHT," said Dante, "and the people will find their own way." Chicago merchants are wise in giving the most light to the street that does the most business.

And it is important for a great city to keep its retail district concentrated. Concentrated business makes possible concentrated advertising and means economy for merchants.

It means convenience for women in their shopping. They read the store news at home, then find everything that interests them in one neighborhood.

THE BRILLIANT lighting of State street, increasing safety, defying the early darkness of Winter days, is an excellent beginning, typical of the energy of Chicago's business men and citizens generally.

The next step, even more important, will be to increase transportation facilities for reaching State street.

Transportation is to a city what circulation of the blood is to the body.

Chicago's "I will" and the civic energy of many other cities should be translated into an absolutely adequate transportation system.

A MEMORIAL to Woodrow Wilson at Geneva proclaims President Wilson "Founder of the League of Nations."

One of Europe's millions that hate this country hang a sign on the Wilson memorial, saying: "The American people have done nothing to deserve that the President should be designated as the founder of the League of Nations."

AMEN, AND thank Heaven for that. This country doesn't want to be the founder of the League of Nations.

It would like to be the founder of such a power on this continent as would inspire respect in those European nations. It would like to be associated in a great League of American Nations, North and South.

IT IS NOT America's fault if the people of Europe continue to cut each other's throats, lie, cheat, declare war.

Ten thousand high-powered, swift flying machines, plenty of submarines, and a ready answer to any impertinence from Europe is what this country needs, not any "credit" for meddling in other nations' business.

DISPATCHES say Missouri is taking Senator James Reed of that State "most seriously" as a candidate for President on the Democratic ticket. Senator Reed may well be taken seriously. If he were President of the United States there would be a fighting man in the White House, and this country would be put in condition to protect itself in war, and inspire respect in time of peace.

The United States has had enough of the mush and milk policy, the silly idea of wandering around the earth to see how kind we can be to others.

Presidents and Senators are paid to render service to this country.

NEW YORK'S university for young women, Barnard College, intends to set aside a million dollars to increase teachers' salaries, a wise decision.

Well paid, satisfied teachers, their services appreciated, are more important than new buildings or any sort of flue collegiate monument.

Young students eager to learn, and teachers competent to teach, by any sort of building will fit the work of education.

LEGION FAVORS MITCHELL AIR FORCE PLAN

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 14.—The American Legion aeronautics committee recommended in effect the aviation program sponsored by Colonel Billy Mitchell, the stormy petrel of the army air service.

"We recommend the organization of the national defense into a single defense department with separation of equal importance for land, sea and air forces," said the report of the aeronautics committee, which was adopted unanimously.

"We believe that the aeronautical forces should not be built up at the expense of other necessary branches of the military service and that adequate provision should be made for each."

San Antonio, Tex., was today selected as the 1928 meeting place of the American Legion's national convention.

The boys decided to meet two years hence in the Lone Star State after hearing bids from San Antonio, Miami, Detroit and Denver. Dan Moody, Governor-elect of Texas, extended San Antonio's invitation. Among other things he promised "first class hotel rooms at $2.50, ham and eggs at 40 cents, coffee at a nickel and free automobile transportation."

MORE MAIL NEEDED IN HUB AIR SERVICE

William G. Rockefeller, nephew of John D. Rockefeller; Major-General John F. O'Ryan, head of the Colonial Air Transport, and other directors of that company were on their way to Boston today for an important conference to take place here tonight on the air mail situation.

Howard Coonley, in whose office the conference will take place, and W. Irving Bullard, who are also directors, will be at the meeting at which the small amount of mail carried by the company between this city and New York will be discussed.

It is understood the Colonial Air Transport planes carry only about 50 pounds of mail each day, while the directors believe the minimum should be 200 pounds. At tonight's meeting an attempt will be made to find a solution of the problem.

MACKEREL CATCH SOLD FOR $3,600 AT PIER

One of the most profitable mackerel trips yet to reach the Fish Pier was received today, aboard the schooner Bettina, when her catch, gathered in three days, was sold to dealers for $3,600.

The steam trawler Foam brought 175,000 pounds of groundfish and the trawler Scotia 120,000, both from South Channel. Other cargoes ranged from 76,000 to 8,200 pounds.

'I'm Ora's Sister'

"WHAT'S MY NAME?" "Never mind! Let it stand Gray!" says sister of Mystery Girl, who shot herself in attempt at suicide.

Identification was made today of the mystery girl who shot herself on the Charles River Esplanade in an unsuccessful suicide attempt—but she still remains a mystery.

"Ora Gray" she must be on the police records and on the records of the Massachusetts General Hospital, for the girl who claimed to be her sister and who identified the mystery girl as such, refused to give the right name of herself or the shooting victim.

"I am her sister," the 17-year-old hospital visitor declared. "Her name is not Ora Gray but Oro Gray. It can stand."

Both girls wept and threw their arms around each other and kissed when the sister entered Ward B and sighted the figure lying on her cot—out of danger and with the bullet removed from her abdomen, but still the object of careful treatment

MISS X' DATA IS STOLEN

Los Angeles, Oct. 14 (I.N.S.)—Important documents bearing on Aimee Semple McPherson case, sold to a writer received by the preacher from Kenneth G. Ormiston, her former radio man, on August 8, have been stolen from the office of S. S. Hahn, attorney for Mrs. Lorraine Wisenor Seiloff, informed perpetrator of the Miss Mac, Hahn announced today.

Hahn said the documents were kept in a secret compartment in his office safe.

"With the exception of the letter sent criminal to Mrs. McPherson, can implicate any other documents," Hahn declared.

In the Ormiston letter to Mrs. McPherson, sent from Colorado, Hahn said the radio man promised to keep in close touch with the nefarious Temple party and come to Los Angeles to join her when ever she wanted him to come.

"This letter has not been made public," Hahn said.

GAINER FLAYS R. I. STATE RING

Providence, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Rhode Island is dominated by a small group of individuals who control the government absolutely, who have no regard for the public welfare, who have no sympathy with the aspirations of the average citizen, who look upon the management of the Commonwealth as a game, the chief object of which is to acquire and distribute patronage and who take out of the game personal profits for themselves and their followers, said Mayor Joseph H. Gainer of Providence today in his formal letter of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for Governor.

In the Ormiston letter to Mrs. McPherson, sent from Colorado, Hahn said the radio man promised to keep in close touch with the nefarious Temple party and come to Los Angeles to join her when ever she wanted him to come.

"This letter has not been made public," Hahn said.

Mayor Gainer attacked Sterling Tanner, Commissioner of Banking, and Jack for his alleged financial connections with the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company and the United Electric Railways Company.

Margate, Eng., Oct. 14 (I.N.S.)—The Labor party conference here today adopted a resolution demanding annulment of the Versailles treaty and the Dawes plan and repudiation of the Locarno pacts, which were described as a threat directed at Russia.

FIRST BABIES ARE ENTERED IN NEW PRIZE CONTEST

Constance Harriet Brown, seven months, of No. 9 Leaton street, Dorchester, and Robert Emerson Jackson, jr., who is much smaller than his name and who lives at No. 29 Bradeen street, Roslindale, are introduced to you today.

They are the first babies to be entered in the Boston Evening American-Metropolitan Theatre baby contest in connection with the theatre's first birthday anniversary which comes on next Sunday.

Baby Bobby's picture was handed direct to the "Baby Editor," while that of little Lady Constance came through the mail. They are the first. Now send in the pictures of the other babies born since the Metropolitan Theatre was opened, Oct. 17, 1925.

PRIZES OFFERED.

The following prizes are offered in this quest for the most perfect baby born in Boston since that date:

First prize—$150 in gold.

Second prize—A colored and framed enlargement of baby's picture; donated by Gus White, photographer.

Third prize—$25 bank account for baby.

Fourth prize—One dozen art photographs; donated by Gus White, photographer.

The contest will close next Wednesday, Oct. 20. All entries must be in the hands of the "Baby Editor" of the Boston Evening American by noon of that day.

WILL PRINT LIST

Thursday, Oct. 21, the Boston Evening American will print a list of 100 babies whose parents or guardians will take them to the place to be named for examination under direction of Health Commissioner Mahoney.

In addition to winning $150 in gold the "perfect baby" will be photographed for the Metropolitan Theatre screen.

If you wish to enter your baby in this interesting contest send a photograph of the youngster to "Baby Editor, Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass."

On the back of the photograph write clearly the name, address, date and place of birth of the child and the name, address and telephone number of the parent or legal guardian.

That's all there is to do. Then watch the Boston Evening American for further details of the contest.

COLD SHOWER IS FATAL TO LOVE

His wife showered him with cold water on Sunday morning when he got up to go to church against her wishes, Edward Gilbride, South End real estate man, testified today in Suffolk Probate Court in a suit brought by Mrs. Gilbride for separate support.

She threatened his life, pulled his hair, ordered him out of the house, threw his clothes out of the window and pulled the shirt off his back, he said. He quoted her as saying, "Some night when you go to bed you will never wake up."

Mrs. Gilbride, now living in Winthrop, said their marital difficulties started four years ago and that her husband left her. They were married in 1916.

LEADERS' ROW MADE INDIANA KLAN REBEL

By COURT ASHER
(Copyright, 1926, by the Boston Evening American Publishing Co.)

Chicago, Oct. 14.—D. C. Stephenson broke with Hiram Wesley Evans, the "Imperial Wizard," the year after Klan headquarters was moved from Indianapolis to Columbus, O.

The Klan went to Ohio to do the same thing there that was done in Indiana—subjugate the State.

Now, it is a curious fact that next to nothing is known of "Steve's" past. Even his age is a matter for speculation; he is anywhere from 40 to 55.

Some say he was born in Texas; others, that his birthplace is Massachusetts. The earliest definite trace of him is in Oklahoma, where, already a young man, he worked for a time in a feed store in Oklahoma City.

TWICE DIVORCED

He married—and later was divorced; that much is known. And that he has a daughter, now 12, by that marriage. Her mother later married again. She is Mrs. Nettie Erwin of Oklahoma City.

There was some sort of trouble in Oklahoma City—the divorce, perhaps—and "Steve" went to Davenport, Ia., where he worked for a wholesale grocer.

From Davenport, Stephenson went to Evansville, Ind. There he met and married his second wife, with whom he lived for two years. She finally went to Akron, Ohio, and obtained a divorce there.

"Steve" developed into a high pressure stocks and bonds salesman. Curiously enough his best friends were former Mayor Bosse of Evansville and John Jennings, a millionaire Catholic.

It was about this time that Simmons, who was organizing the Klan in New York, sold out to E. Y. Clark. Clark came to Evansville looking for a salesman to put over a membership drive. He tied up with "Steve."

Stephenson organized the first Klan in Indiana, Evansville Klan No. 1. He became its first "Exalted Cyclops."

Throughout the Klan Stephenson became known as "The Old Man," a mysterious figure of tremendous power. His friends were legion; his enemies, numberless.

He was ambitious. He wanted to become head of the Klan. And he forced the resignation of Simmons as Imperial Wizard, thinking to be himself elected in Simmons' stead.

One of the greatest disappointments "Steve" ever suffered was the elevation of Hiram Wesley Evans, a Dallas dentist, to the Imperial throne. He blamed the southern Klans for his defeat.

It soon became apparent that Stephenson and Evans could not work together in harmony, and when the break finally came Stephenson, who was grand dragon, promptly resigned from the Klan.

Evans, as promptly, put Bossart, a Klegle, in his place and accused "Steve" of misusing some $600,000 of Klan funds. Stephenson retaliated by filing suit for damages in the Federal Court in Indianapolis.

Then Stephenson went before the Indiana Klan as their old leader, "Steve." He openly defied Bossart and Evans, and he gathered the Indiana Kians about him and declared what amounted to an Independent "Empire."

BACKED WATSON

"Steve" backed Senator "Jim" Watson for the vice-presidency at the Cleveland National Republican convention. Bossart and Evans spent money like water—$150,000—to block the nomination.

There were gay parties galore—wine, women and song aplenty. Congressmen, senators, committeemen, prominent politicians, financiers, manufacturers—all the "gang" crossed the gangplank.

At one time Stephenson was the possessor of a fortune estimated in excess of $1,000,000.

Today, "Steve" has left probably $250,000. He has no bank account—the money or securities or what never it may be are carefully salted away under assumed names in a half dozen safety deposit vaults, none in Indiana.

If ever D. C. Stephenson is released from the penitentiary, he will walk out a man ready to "come back" with a vengeance. Then let his enemies look out. They know that—and that is why "Steve" is where he is today.

SUNLIGHT TO LENGTHEN LIFE

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Dr. Irving Fisher of Yale University believes that before the close of this century we shall be a nation of centenarians, and has offered to wager the American Health Association in session here $10 to $1 that his prediction will come true.

Scientific knowledge of health needs, plus the rediscovery of simple biological living will be responsible for the life average increase, in his opinion.

Millions of deaths were caused when man was deprived of the ultra-violet rays of the sun by the invention of window glass, Professor Fisher told the association. This has been found out, however, and men are now seeking sunlight and inventing glass which lets its healthful rays in, he said.

He believes every man has it within his power to rid himself of every parasitic disease, largely through exercise, sleep, fresh air and good food.

Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, estimated the value of lives that could be saved annually "through the application of preventative medicine and public health measures" at nine times the life of a child at birth be fixed at $9,333; at five years, $44,156, and at 15 years, $25,841.

Thirty thousand young men and women between the ages of 25 and 35 die every year from preventable causes, Dr. Dublin declared. He expressed the belief that increase of the annual per capita allowance for public health work from 50 cents, the present figure, to $2.50 would add from five to seven years to the length of life of the average man.

Failure of colleges to teach the proper dance and swing is responsible for an unnecessarily large number of golf duffers, Dr. Hugh Grant Rowell of Teachers' College, Columbia University, told the association. Dr. Rowell advocated tennis, golf and dancing as ideal sports for the physical improvement of college students.

FRENCH GIRLS LIKE NOVELS

"The French girl of leisure, the non-collegiate, reads the popular novel with plenty of sex and sentiment; it out, the sex problem, which. They are terrible readers. She reads like a child. Some as the American girl."

With a delicious twinkle in her eye and the fascinating elusive little slurring of delicious Paris, Mme. Aline Fayen of France, librarian of the American Library Association, now in the Hub on a two-day visit, laughed her response to what the "French flapper reads for amusement."

They have no public libraries in France, and therefore the reading of the people is in no way regulated or even guided, she pointed out. However a movement for free public libraries is under way.

A new condition entirely resultant of the World War is the French girl of comfortable means who works, but who doesn't need to. Some work because their love for work, a feeling developed in the Great War. French girls do not travel much. They stay at home, she said.

Americans have the wrong conception of the real French girl the visitor pointed out. When an American thinks of her she paints her gaudily. They don't think of the serious French girl of the university.

"In general our universities forbid women to smoke," she smiled.

Another comparison revealed the fact that French families are very particular about their foreign friends, before inviting them into the home.

"Here you are so hospitable and open with courtesy. In Paris the family must know who you are, what your parents are, where they come from and all about you before making you one of the family.

"Your girls are lovely. They are pleasant and agreeable. And they spend so much money on clothes. French girls make all their own dresses. If she had the money of Americans, ah— She never can buy in the shops and in Paris, oh, no, no, no. Never."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

The Jonathan Browns, Jr., Give Dinner Dance to Daughter, Gretchen

THE PLEASANTEST OF PRE-NUPTIAL parties, a dinner dance for the bridal group, is on the cards tomorrow evening at the Jonathan Brown, Jr., Bay State road home, as mater and pater (always the delightful hosts) entertain for Miss Gretchen Brown and James Crossan Chaplin, 3d.

MR. AND MRS. BROWN'S entertainment for their daughter on the eve of her wedding duplicates their festivity when a son of the house, Philip Brown, married Miss Rachel Grant last Spring. The young Mrs. Brown is a matron of honor (one of three) when Miss Brown walks up the aisle to become Mrs. Chaplin.

FORTUNE GALLO'S advent to town is signal for many festal occasions, as frequently in fact as the impresario can lay aside his operatic duties. One of the pleasantest affairs for him was a dinner given by Professor and Mrs. Eldon James at their home in aristocratic old Brattle street, Cambridge.

FOR MISS LUCRETIA GODDARD, also, there would sound a social fanfare were not this young aspirant for operatic honors devoting every precious moment to alternate rest and study in preparation for next Monday's supreme occasion, her debut at the Opera House.

THAT THIS charming girl, with a splendid training in her native city capped by further study abroad comes to Boston for her debut makes the affair doubly interesting. Adoring relatives and friends will be at the Opera House that evening to acclaim her.

MRS. KENNETH P. BUDD'S appointment to the Rhode Island reception committee to greet Her Royal Highness, Queen Marie, of Rumania, brings to Boston a vicarious interest, inasmuch as Mrs. Budd before her first marriage to Austen Gray was a Miss Alice Burnham, of Boston.

MISS JULIET GREENE

Younger set member plans to travel abroad for several months. She and her mother, Mrs. Bertram Greene, will see French and Italian points of interest.

SHE IS A MEMBER of Newport's smart colony, and as Mrs. William Fitchugh Whitehouse, also of the Aquidneck Isle's haute monde, has been chosen for the same exalted duty, there is double cause for rejoicing in that celebrated set.

NEWPORTERS HAVE packed their trunks and departed to town or country, as fancy called. Mrs. Prescott Lawrence and Miss Katherine Lawrence have gone to the Ritz-Carlton, in New York. Mrs. May Brady Harriman is registered at the Colony Club.

MRS. GIRAUD F. ELLIOTT, the former Miss Elizabeth Sands, has concluded her Newport stay with her mother, Mrs. Frederick P. Sands, and gone to Kingston, in Canada, to rejoin Mr. Elliott. The Senor and Senora de Riano also have taken their ambassadorial way from Newport.

TODAY FOR Norfolk Hunt Club riders tallo-ho sounded off an early morning signal, horses, riders and hounds gathering at quarter after seven at Pokanoket Club. Saturday, the 16th, comes an afternoon run from the Common, Millis.

EIGHT HORSES LEFT IN ANNUAL ENDURANCE TEST

Brandon, Vt., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—One rider dropped out as nine horses started for the hills today on the fourth 40 miles of the eighth annual saddle horse endurance ride. The rider who was forced out was Dr. H. L. Frost.

Rusty, his horse, was ridden today by Lieutenant Charles R. Chase whose mount, Moccasin, was withdrawn. Dr. Frost suffered a fracture of a bone in one leg, caused when his horse stumbled Tuesday morning.

Tonight the horses will have completed 240 miles of the 300-mile endurance ride. Tomorrow, the fifth day, will end this year's test.

"CARAVAN" PROMISES TO BE BIG SUCCESS

With final plans completed and prominent society women offering their aid everything points to a successful presentation of a bazaar entitled "Caravan," to be held at Horticultural Hall on the afternoons and evenings of November 18 and 19.

"Caravan" is being presented under auspices of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club of this city and the proceeds will be used to aid wounded veterans in the care of government hospitals as well as among the enlisted personnel who use the clubhouses as a recreation place during leave from duty.

MOVE TO RECALL GOV. HARTLEY OF WASHINGTON

Seattle, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—A State-wide movement to recall Governor Roland H. Hartley was being organized today under a resolution adopted at a meeting of 4,000 persons, accusing the Governor of violating his oath of office. Worrall Wilson, banker, chairman of the meeting, was instructed to name 100 citizens of the State to carry out the recall plans.

The meeting was in protest against University of Washington placing Dr. Henry Suzzallo on an indefinite leave of absence as president after he had refused to resign. A majority of the regents were appointees of Hartley.

Speaks on Russia

Sherwood Eddy, recently returned from Russia where he conducted an independent investigation of conditions under an agreement with the Soviet government, will be the speaker today at a public chapel service at the Boston University School of Theology, No. 12 Mt. Vernon street, at 2:45.

FAIR WEATHER TO CONTINUE

The pendulum of Autumn early today began to swing to its fair weather mark over Greater Boston and the local official prediction opines it will be 36 hours, at least, before unseasonable conditions will reverse the movement.

Pleasant weather and sunny skies smile on the eastern sections of the country from New York to Tennessee and were reflected hereabouts in an average rise of seven degrees in temperature over the preceding 24 hours.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; moderate westerly winds.

FORMER GERMAN RULER ASKS FOR POOR RELIEF

Detmold, Germany, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Prince Leopold, former ruler of Lippe-Detmold, is so poverty stricken that he is reported to have successfully applied for poor relief to pay the cost of legal proceedings by which he hopes to recover sums due him from a private debtor. Under the settlement with the Republican State government he was allotted about 9,000 acrees.

While part of his real estate is intrinsically valuable, the prince is devoid of cash resources, having renounced even his officer's pension.

SUN SPOTS TO CAUSE BIG STORMS LAST OF WEEK

Santa Clara, Cal., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Storms of "attenuated intensity" are forecast for October 15 and 16 by Father J. S. Ricardo, director of the observatory of the University of Santa Clara.

Calling attention to the journey across the sun's disk of the giant sunspot group first observed at the university September 13, Father Ricardo said:

"That famous group was first seen at the observatory of the university September 13. After that it was observed every day until its final disappearance on September 25.

"When it became central storms, hurricanes, floods and earthquakes were raging in various parts of the world. Its centre of gravity will again be central on October 15-16, when storms of attenuated intensity will reoccur.

"The spots have already reappeared, commencing their second rotation."

HUB MUST GROW SAYS CURLEY

By JAMES M. CURLEY
Former Mayor of Boston

In a quarter century I have seen Boston grow in population from little more than 500,000 to nearly 800,000. I hope in the next quarter century to see a greater increase in population and area, through the creation of a Metropolitan Boston, embracing an area of more than 400 square miles and a population of approximately 2,000,000 people.

Then and not until then will Boston come into its own. Instead of her present position as eighth among leading American cities Boston, under the metropolitan plan, would assume her rightful place as fourth among the great cities of the country. What a future to embrace in industrial and commercial benefits alone.

Ex-Mayor Curley

The city of Boston is a growing institution, hampered by members of its parent, the State Legislature because of its political complexion.

BIGGER HUB ESSENTIAL.

This is an unfortunate condition. It has delayed adoption of the only sane remedy such as other leading cities have put in operation, namely, a Greater Boston, embracing all cities and towns within a radius of fifteen miles from the State House. In fact because of partisan prejudices the plan has never received the serious consideration that it is entitled to.

A prosperous, busy and larger Boston, commercially, industrially and geographically, is essential to the welfare of the people of the State, regardless of party politics or sectional short-sightedness. Early action along this line is vital.

Projects which I shall enumerate are not problems in the real sense of the word. They are merely progressive steps in the development of a metropolis. Many of them would be in process of consummation if the public weal were paramount to petty partisanship on Beacon Hill.

The projects in question, brought to fruition, would mean the shedding by Boston of the swaddling clothes of infancy for raiment in keeping with the strength and harmony of a mature and well-ordered existence. The individual or city that refuses to grow, typifies stagnation, decay and oblivion. Fortified with a pet symbol of faith and self-reliance, it is our duty to face the future with confidence, courage and hope.

CROSS SUBWAY.

Two years ago I advocated before the Legislature, construction of a subway under Huntington avenue from Park square to a point beyond Massachusetts avenue, with a view to meeting the transportation needs of this rapidly growing business community and also to provide high speed transportation that section of Roxbury and Jamaica Plain districts where existing facilities are very unsatisfactory.

Attention must soon be given to a cross-town subway under Massachusetts avenue from Cambridge to Edward Everett square in Dorchester, connecting with the existing Boylston street subway at the Massachusetts station and the Northampton station of the elevated at Washington street.

The construction of a subway under Huntington avenue connecting with the tracks and roadbed of the Boston and Albany railroad at Brookline, making possible the establishment of a Boston-Brookline-Newton circuit should be undertaken at an early date.

URGES 'L' GARAGES.

The extension of the present subway from Governor's Square under Commonwealth and Brighton avenues to connect with Boston-Brookline and Newton circuit would settle the transportation problems here for the next half century.

Establishment by the Boston Elevated Railway Company of garages at transfer points, with a nominal charge for storage, should receive early and favorable consideration.

The necessity for a survey of Boston's traffic problem by recognized national experts and adoption of a plan to provide relief from present ruinous congestion which represents serious fire hazard and a menace to the nerves of pedestrians, should not longer be delayed.

FIRST QUESTION IN MARTHA LEE SERIES TODAY

The Boston Evening American begins today the best and biggest Martha Lee contest ever conducted in New England, the Martha Lee Homemakers' contest. Every homemaker within reach of the Boston Evening American is invited to take part and share in the distribution of the big prizes.

Every day for 33 days this newspaper will print one question about some phase of homemaking. At the end of the contest you will have in all the answers to the complete set of 33 questions, and answers and addresses to Home makers' Contest Judges, Boston Evening American, for 24 hours.

Please understand that you are not to send in the answers as they appear. Send in nothing until the last one has been printed. But cut each one, and write the answer each night. Today is the first night. We are off, with big prizes in sight for the fortunate winners.

DIVISION OF PRIZES.

One thousand dollars are going to be distributed. Forty women will receive cash prizes. Engraved certificates for generous amounts, which will pave the way for some boy's college course, some mortgage to be lifted, and innumerable improvements made on the house.

The first prize is $300; the second prize is $200; the third $75; the fourth $50 and the fifth $25. Then come prizes of $10 each, and twenty-five of $5 each.

And here is the first Question. The first step toward success, the first opportunity to be among the winners:

Should bread rise in a warm or a cold place?

Not so hard, is it? Many a woman has turned to the "store" bread just because she didn't know the answer to this question.

So clip out the coupon, put on your thinking cap and write in the answer. Then put it away in a safe place and wait until tomorrow's question appears. Do this every night for the 33 questions, then send them all in together, as directed, and one of the prize may be yours.

CAPABLE JUDGES.

The judges are familiar friends of yours. Mrs. Ida M. Hebbard, president of the Housekeepers' League, Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, and your own Martha Lee will pass the final word upon the winners.

Martha Lee's Homemakers Contest

Question Number 1

Should bread rise in a warm or a cold place?

Answer

Name

Address

Cut on the dotted line.

Acting with these judges will be a special advisory committee including Mrs. Della T. Lutes, housekeeping editor of Modern Priscilla; Caroline S. Saunders, director of Home Economics at LaSalle Seminary, and Mrs. Gladys B. Jones of the Garland School of Homemaking.

CONTEST RULES.

The rules governing Martha Lee's homemakers' contest are:

Beginning Oct. 14 for 33 consecutive publication days the Boston Evening American will print coupon containing a question on some phase of homemaking. Contest will end Saturday, Nov. 20, 1926. Everyone is invited to enter this contest. Simply cut out the coupon and answer the question, or, if you prefer, use other paper on which to write questions and answer.

The prize winners will be those contestants whose sets of answers, in the opinion of the judges, most accurately and practically and intelligently provide the required information. The judges will be, Mrs. Ida M. Hebbard, president of the Housekeepers' League; Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, and your own Martha Lee, household economist of the Boston Evening American.

The first prize will be $300 in cash. Thirty-nine other cash prizes will be given. Second prize, $150; third prize $75; fourth prize, $50; fifth prize $20; ten prizes of $10 each, and twenty-five prizes of $5 each.

Answers must be submitted in complete sets of thirty-three answers, arranged in order. DO NOT SEND IN ANY ANSWERS BEFORE THE CLOSE OF THE CONTEST. All sets of thirty-three answers must be mailed, POSTAGE FULLY PREPAID AT FIRST CLASS to the Homemakers' Contest Judges, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 110, Boston, Massachusetts and postmarked not later than Saturday, November 20th, 1926.

NO LIMIT ON SETS.

Entries bearing insufficient postage will not be received. No sets of answers will be returned by the Boston Evening American.

It is not necessary for a contestant to purchase the Boston Evening American to enter this contest. Tracings of the contest coupons can be made from files at the Boston Evening American or any public library.

Contestants may send in as many sets as they desire, but no contestant shall be entitled to more than one prize.

This contest is open to everyone except employes and the families of employes of the Boston Evening American and affiliated newspapers. The entry of a set of answers to the close of the contest will be consideration that the contestant has acknowledged and accepted these rules as fair to all, and is willing to abide by the decision of the judges, which will be final.

MOTHER FEARS SON, 13, RAN AWAY TO SEA

Edmund Conlon

Fear that her son Edmund, 13, missing since Sept. 25, may have gone to sea under an assumed name, was expressed today by Mrs. Bridget A. Conlon of No. 1 Ratchelder street, Dorchester. The lad left home without giving any reason, and later told a chum who met him that he was going to sea on a coal barge out of East Boston.

He is described as five feet, five inches tall, and weighs about 115 pounds. When seen by his chum, he wore a blue skirt and overalls. He had been in seventh grade pupil at the Hugh O'Brien Grammar School.

CASTLE SQUARE PLAYERS SCORE IN CLEVER FARCE

This week's attraction at the Castle Square, "Easy Come, Easy Go," is a farce written by Owen Davis which enjoyed a prosperous run here last season. The Castle Square Players present a solid front in this merry piece. All of the parts are well acted, especially Gavin Gordon, who plays one of the pair of crooks who enter a sanitarium to escape the police and who gives a well rounded characterization.

Jean Oliver, the leading lady of the players, has a comparatively easy task, but a very little more to do than keep attractive. W. H. MacDonald plays the sour old father and Ranlin Mansfield presents a new view of the society fop, Jack Gay. He does a very creditable performance in the old Victor Moore role.

TELLS WOMEN TO STRIKE FOR HOME EQUIPMENT

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 14 (A.P.). —"Deliberate husbands have only themselves to blame," declared Mrs. Anna Peterson, of Chicago, at the convention of the American Gas Association here today. "They expect their wives in many cases to create an efficient home out of equipment which they would not dare to introduce into their business offices.

"Many men who complain of a continuous diet of pre-cooked foods would not dream of hiring and paying a stenographer and then sending around the corner to a typing agency merely because they failed to buy a typewriter." Nevertheless this is the attitude of many men in the home."

Mrs. Peterson said she wished she could advise all women to strike for modern equipment in the kitchen.

Channing H. Cox, vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, and former governor of Massachusetts, told the delegates the gas industry would have no trouble in financing its requirements if it follows the essentials of wise management and continues to improve its relations with the public.

SCHOOL THIEVES STEAL $65

Breaking into the high school in Roxbury today, thieves stole $65 from locker in the office of Principal Miles Woodman and ransacked 20 or lockers used by pupils, police so informed.

Investigation revealed that entrance was effected by jimmying a window and passing through each Brawer's room to the office Principal Woodman. The money, ralised from the sale of tickets for ch school events, was stolen by leing the locker.

The other lockers were jimmied as was could be learned nothing was sen from them. The police believe the work was that of amateurs, obably boys.

EW YORK MAIL PLANE WILL HOP OFF EARLIER

Announcement was made by Postmaster Baker that beginning today the mail plane for Hartford and New York, now leaving the East Boston airport at 5 p. m., will take off at 2:45 p. m. until further notice, the closing time at the main post office being 3:45.

PLAN A. F. OF L. MEXICO PACT

Detroit, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—A proposed advancing joint action between the Mexican and American Federations of Labor in curbing immigration smuggling along the international boundary opened the way for discussion of Mexican relations in the American labor convention today.

Representatives of the California Federation of Labor were sponsors of the resolution, which directed the executive council to appoint commissioners to negotiate directly with Mexican labor leaders in an attempt to provide border regulations through a nebulous form of "gentlemen's agreement" without reference of the problem to the governmental authorities of either nation. The Mexican federation already has appointed its commissioners.

Don M. Wilt, representative of the California federation, encountered vigorous opposition to the proposal in informal conversations among the delegates, but sponsors of the resolution anticipated the committee report might be acted upon without reference in debate to other phases of relations between labor organizations of the two countries.

HUGHES SCORED BY PATRIOTIC SOCIETIES

"Rupert Hughes goes beyond the truth!"

"Stuff!"

"I don't believe the statements of Mr. Hughes."

"Wrong and untrue."

"It is most unfortunate."

"The book should be suppressed!"

These are a few of the comments made by members of patriotic societies in Greater Boston when asked for their opinion of the statements made by Rupert Hughes in his book, "The Life of George Washington," which has created a furore throughout the country.

SCORED BY A.R.

[illegible] Mrs. Adelaide Nutting Bailey, president general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, said today:

"The statements of Rupert Hughes in his book, 'The Life of George Washington,' are untrue. Mr. Hughes has not taken the time to look up the facts in the case. He has not consulted the authorities on the subject. He has not read the letters written by Washington himself. I have not had time to read the book myself, but I have heard enough about it to know that it is

What Is a "Good Crop?"

What is a "good crop"?

The question comes up naturally when we find country-wide excitement, mingled with a degree of apprehension, over the fact that a "bumper" cotton crop is looked for. At first thought a big cotton crop would be thought of as a good one. On further inquiry, however, it transpires there is a good deal of doubt about it.

Cotton growers favor cutting the next crop, planting of which begins in a few weeks, about 25 per cent. It might pay to have a close study made of the methods by which Great Britain has kept up the prices of "long staple" cotton, sent here from Egypt. They include acreage restriction with the expressed purpose of keeping up prices.

It is not so long ago since Aroostook County, the greatest potato growing section in the world, was hard hit by having too large a crop. It is understood that study was made of the situation by Boston financial interests with the result that future difficulties appear unlikely to be serious.

That a crop of any soil product ought to be as nearly as possible equal to the probable demand seems evident. Farms, like manufacturing plants, are coming to be run on sounder principles than prevailed a few years ago.

RADIO ALARM IS NEWEST ENEMY OF BURGLAR

The radio burglar alarm is the latest invention of radio experts. The scheme makes use of the well known "body capacity" effect familiar to most radio fans. A metal plate about three feet square is hidden on the floor in front of the safe, and the safe itself placed on small pieces of rubber or bakelite to insulate it from the floor. Wires are then led from each to the receiving set and a loud speaker is connected in series.

The oscillator is adjusted so that the relay remains closed. The safe door is then closed and locked. The condenser is then carefully adjusted to a point where a slight movement of the safe door will cause the oscillator to go into action. This movement changes the capacity between the safe and floor, thereby disturbing the balance of the instrument and causing the relay to close the alarm circuit.

The radio burglar alarm system can be set to work when any desired body passes near it. Many have been suggested, such as a window frame, door or safe. The apparatus is so sensitive that it will detect the approach of a person within a distance of several feet. Even a heavy curtain hung between the protected object and the instrument will not stop the action of the alarm.

WET LEAD-IN STRIP DECREASES VOLUME

With certain radio receivers it is found that the volume of received voice and music is reduced noticeably during a rain storm. This is sometimes due to poor insulators on the aerial but a clean aerial often be tried by a short wet lead in insulator. Some of the "lead-in" strip is supplied with receiving sets. This consists of a strip of thin copper with a soft rubber covering. This is generally short circuited against the window frame and causes the loss of much of the energy flowing down the aerial wire. If the lead-in wire cannot be drilled to pass through one of these window strips, be sure you get one that is covered with waterproof insulation.—Advertising Radio News Magazine.

Correct Way to Drill Holes

When drilling or countersinking holes, stand directly above the work. Keep the drill straight up and down and apply only sufficient pressure to insure a good cutting action. Excessive pressure will break out the underside of the material; a block of wood under it will prevent this and insure a clean hole.

Eat and sleep under the same roof. Many rooms with board just like home listed in the Classified Ads. Classification 87

GOOD NEWS FOR AUTOISTS IN SYNTHETIC PETROLEUM

Paris, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Synthetic petroleum, long the dream of men engaged in chemical research, is now an accomplished fact, says the Matin, thanks to the work of M. Audibert, a young chemist connected with the French National Research Company.

M. Audibert attained the result of his experiments by submitting a mixture of hydrogen and oxygen to a pressure of [illegible] atmospheres. The result was filtered with the addition of a catalytic agent, the nature of which Audibert is keeping secret.

The petroleum thus obtained can be refined like the natural product and will yield gasoline, kerosene, gas oil and other products. The news paper, however, omits to say whether M. Audibert's process is a commercial proposition or a mere scientific curiosity.

TOSSES HORSESHOES ON SUNDAY; LUCKY IN COURT

Hull, Ill., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—"Can a horseshoe be a quoit?" queried Attorney Graham in defending Charles Keim, the village blacksmith, charged with pitching horseshoes on the village green Sunday in conflict with the town's "blue laws." A jury decided it was not when the attorney, delving into the law, showed that the village ordinance prohibited "pitching quoits," but said nothing about horseshoes. "Not guilty" was the verdict.

A Modern Romance With a Charming Heroine

By Hazel Livingston

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Rosemary Merton, youngest daughter in a large Roxbury family, rebels at her poor surroundings and dreams of romance and luxury. She is attending college, but quits and gets a job in a fashionable bookstore through a friend, Nina Clark. Nina takes Rosemary up the back stairs in the building to a studio occupied by a group of artists. They call it the Secret Studio. One Sunday Rosemary and Larry go to the studio alone, where they are surprised by Sloan Whitney. Rosemary later meets Whitney and is strongly attracted to him. He sends her some flowers. Rosemary's sister Gertie marries.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SHE took a step. Her knees were knocking. They didn't want to hold her up. But the door was near, she reached for it gropingly.

He watched her, watched her go, got out of his life because he had been a fool, rushing her, frightening her. She was almost to the door. In a minute she would be gone, rose white Rosemary, the only girl he had ever really loved.

She mustn't go. Hold her—just a minute—just a minute to explain—make everything right.

"Rosemary!" he cried. "Rosemary," and flung his great body at her little feet. His arms were around her knees, his face hidden in her skirt. "Don't go!" he pleaded. "Don't go, Rosemary, my heart!"

She stopped. Partly because he was holding her, partly because

REED TO TURN GUNS ON KLAN IN INDIANA

St. Louis, Oct. 14—The Senate special investigating committee will meet in Indianapolis Monday to turn its searchlight on the Indiana political activities of the Ku Klux Klan and all forms of graft and corruption, recently made public, Senator James A. Reed, chairman of the committee, told International News Service today.

The Senator made his announcement just before leaving on a train to fill a speaking engagement.

Indianapolis, Oct. 14 (I.N.S.)—A second appearance of D. C. Stephenson, self-confessed slayer of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, before the Marion county grand jury, was predicted today.

TESTIMONY FIZZLES.

Although it was the consensus today that the former grand kleagle of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan had failed to "blow 'em out of the water" in the first fifty minutes during which he was closeted with the grand jury yesterday, there were indications today that the "old Man" might be ordered here again from the state penitentiary at Michigan City to answer specific questions concerning charges voiced by Lloyd Christian of Noblesville, his former attorney.

NAMES GOVERNOR.

Christian declared that, while acting as Stephenson's counsel during his trial for murder for the death of Madge Oberholtzer, for which Stephenson now is serving a life sentence, he was in Stephenson's possession a canceled check for $5,000 made payable to Governor Ed Jackson.

He also saw a pending to his statement, a letter bearing what was claimed to be the signature of Mayor John Duvall of Indianapolis, in which the Mayor guaranteed Stephenson favors in return for his support in the election.

Tunney Declares Serenity Due to Cultivation

By GENE TUNNEY
World's Heavyweight Champion
CHAPTER NINE

THERE is much ado in the newspapers these days about Gene Tunney's "serenity" in the ring. My "serenity" seems to have been discovered, but the fact is that my self-confidence dates back to and far beyond the seven years in which I have schooled myself for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Perhaps I gained my first "serenity" when I was ten years old in Greenwich Village. My late father bought me a set of boxing gloves. My brothers and I used to put them on and mix it. My father was ready with his hands, although he never was a professional.

He and Chief Kenlon of the New York Fire Department sailed before the mast together, and the chief often tells me how ready my father was with rights and lefts.

Once I began to be capable with my fists a conviction took hold of me that never has deserted me. Why not be active in action? Too many fighters in my opinion, rely on their brains in the dressing room.

Gene Tunney

I remember when I was a Staten Island cobbler about ten years ago. He was a real fighter, and game, but every time we met I would deliberately beat the back guard down, and we would decide by the referee's break would put me with his left. I met him, but he was a grizzled old Dutchman in the middle ages.

Gene Teaches His Rival a Lesson

It occurred to me repeatedly that I decided it was up to me to "put over" a lesson. I posed as that fellow crouched and held up my left hand. His right hand was of course weighted heavily back.

At the call of "break" and just as my opponent was begining to let fly with his left, I sent a left to his jaw that made him reel. He evidently thought I was mad and that I was about to rush in crazily. Instead of charging I gave him a good, steady, stiff jab and laughed at him at the same time. He quit slugging me in the breeze.

When I met Al Roberts, after the war, I was still raw, despite my training and boxing overseas. Roberts was a rough one. He always was dangerous.

When I walked out in the first round and offered to shake hands I got a surprise. It was a murderous right and punch to the jaw. For minutes, it seemed, I was set upon. It was one of those times when I got my guard up and was content to block and clinch. Roberts rushed, and I was content to block and clinch in the frequent clinch.

Then began one of the toughest ring assignments I ever had, not excepting the first fight I had with Harry Greb.

Roberts, clever, would feint and then swing the "rabbit punch" at the base of the skull. He worried me in the fifth and I absorbed him with blows for five rounds.

At the end of the seventh I was not happy by any means, who seemed to have gone well. They waved, shouted, told me to do everything and then not to do another thing. Roberts, cool as I learned then and there to control myself under most trying conditions, had beat Rogers with a right to the jaw in the eighth. That was in Pittsburgh.

Here is an angle that has been given me for a fact, but I am not sure how to say a thing about it. I have first hand knowledge. Anyway it is interesting that I am to try to tell.

Gibson Refused to Look at Tunney

Back in the days of my apprentice, I boxed two preliminary contests in the ring of the Lyric, now Club on One Hundred and Forty-fifth street. This was a rare match, handling assistance which was owned and managed by Billy Gibson, whose latter was to become my pilot. Gib opened the club in 1906 when he was suffering in New York from pugilistic anemia, inferior performances and the gout.

Under the old management, even the preliminaries were formidable. A fresh boy, any newcomer, especially Jimmy Saunders might find the following more to Gibson's liking. Furthermore, despite the fact that the gladiators frequently changed, I was on his pay list as partner.

Well, the story has it, and I was appearing in a preliminary contest right in Summer. My friend was present and Billy Jacobs, who had spurred me into the contest, was waiting my benefit. He then pushed through the screaming crowd back to Gibson's office. There slumped my future manager in a chair.

Perspiration poured from him. His shirt was off. An electric fan was pointed at the Gibsonian torso. Jacobs shouted:

"Say, Bill, come down to the ring side. There's a young kid named Tunney boxing out there and he's as promising as any youngster I've seen in a long time. Take a peek at him."

Gib raised his hand weakly and motioned Jacobs aside. He gasped:

"I'm too tired and too warm to move out of this chair. Tunney may be promising, but I wouldn't walk ten feet to see him tonight if I knew he'd be heavyweight champion of the world!"

Just then Gib collapsed back in the chair. At least, that's the story and today Gibson laughs heartily when it is told.

Tomorrow Tunney tells of his victory over Battling Levinsky, a brilliant defensive fighter.

Southern Eleven Works Out at Harvard for Saturday's Tussle With Harvard

By TED LYNCH

The William and Mary football team arrived at the Woodcock Inn in Wrentham at 2 o'clock today, but as the Harvard athletic authorities were ready to start a scrimmage party to locate the Crimson's rival in Saturday's game.

The [illegible] at Wrentham [illegible] decided [illegible] between the [illegible] going to discover if there [illegible] lost en route.

Coach [illegible] first string [illegible] rest, left Williamsburg [illegible] Academy field in Portland for a short and [illegible] another workout will be held at the same place [illegible].

Tasker [illegible] starting line up for the game today [illegible] Davis, right end, 158; Walker, right tackle, 190; Williams, right guard, 205; Todd, center, 201; Marshall, left guard, 176; Grove, left tackle, 201; Eason, left end, 191; Matson, right guard, 150; Cook, right halfback, 132; Wallick, left halfback, 150; Macon, fullback, 158.

Art Matthews [illegible] Syracuse quarterback, [illegible] the Colonels [illegible] 155. He was [illegible] against Syracuse last week and [illegible] notice was a great help to the backfield.

Reports [illegible] that the [illegible] that [illegible] tion. Captain Mac [illegible] Mac Davis is one of [illegible] the game today. The [illegible] have proved [illegible] forty yards [illegible] Davis, [illegible] to be of [illegible] the receivers [illegible] Hawkins [illegible] Chauncey or [illegible] the backfield.

Coach [illegible] was [illegible] that the [illegible] is the starting [illegible] Owen [illegible] Robinson [illegible] Robinson and [illegible] Clark [illegible] four at [illegible] Purvis [illegible] and Chauncey or [illegible] the backfield.

What a change [illegible] from the [illegible] Indians [illegible] Williams [illegible] Tufts [illegible] Wesleyan [illegible] Trinity [illegible] Bates [illegible] Colby [illegible] Maine [illegible] Bowdoin [illegible] Amherst [illegible] Springfield [illegible] Worcester [illegible] Tech [illegible] Rhode Island [illegible] Connecticut [illegible] Aggies [illegible] Vermont [illegible] Norwich [illegible] Middlebury [illegible] Union [illegible] Hamilton [illegible] Rensselaer [illegible] Hobart [illegible] Colgate [illegible] Syracuse [illegible] Cornell [illegible] Dartmouth [illegible] Harvard [illegible] Princeton [illegible] Yale [illegible] Pennsylvania [illegible] Navy [illegible] Army [illegible] Chauncey or [illegible] the backfield.

Of the [illegible] Kilgour's [illegible] the only [illegible] Coach [illegible] Williams [illegible] Turner and [illegible] Crosby [illegible] Coach [illegible] Crosby is [illegible] a French [illegible] Captain [illegible] have rendered [illegible] of action until the Dartmouth game.

Saltonstall, Stafford, Pratt, Lindner and Comache were ousted, lost their berths to hustling young sophomores.

TUFTS ELEVEN PREPARES FOR BOWDOIN

Tufts [illegible] goes through its final [illegible] Oval for the [illegible] game with Bowdoin Saturday.

The [illegible] Jumbo battle is one of the [illegible] of the [illegible] season [illegible] as [illegible] Medford College. In fact the Hill will be practically deserted with the boys either [illegible] or riding up to Brunswick, and there are no organized trips.

In practice this week, most of the time has been spent in smoothing out both the offensive game and the aerial work. The Jumbo line has proven itself a stone wall in defense, in the last two games.

The line as well as the backfield will in all probability hold the regular first string men. With "Spike" Ellis at quarter, Capt Schroeder and Brown as halfbacks and [illegible] Marshall, fullback, Coach [illegible] soon feels pretty confident of their [illegible]

NICK FLATLEY SAYS:

"In the Bag" Guys on the Job
Small College Stars Obscure
Ruth's Salary Stuns Magnates

NOBODY has started to scratch that Harry Wills tossed his fight to Jack Dempsey because [illegible] would kill him in the second round. That is [illegible] the general racket. That is [illegible] the bar and Tunney was framed to [illegible] a fight. That [illegible] Wills [illegible] unruly when [illegible] are running from cops or dodging [illegible] are usually some [illegible] running such a rumpus.

They raise such a rumpus though, that the gullible [illegible] come to put some stock in the rumors. We saw Jack Dempsey [illegible] work after [illegible] fight with Gene Tunney and the [illegible] floor still had a hanging over his eye. His ringside [illegible] was much bent and bruised.

The boys who saw him take it like a champion [illegible] that he'd be [illegible] like. If Jack was selling out he would have [illegible] service that the [illegible] was on the level.

Nick Flatley.

There was a young feller named Frost
Who made a small bet, and he lost.
He let out a yell
And exclaimed Wallthahell?
Don't tell me that game wasn't tossed

THIS is the season of the year when a Jack-ass means that a husky young man is either a heavyweight title chaser or a star football player. The moose is the most numerous of the fall insects.

THE names of great grid stars are [illegible] of the frisky autumn breezes. A [illegible] of a hundred might be used for All American choice, with no partiality shown. Don't [illegible] that [illegible] on the big teams naturally get the breaks. Which is the only solution under the theoretical system.

• • •

Bill [illegible] W. and Graham who showed a lot of stuff at the Wigwam, will gather hardly a whiff per in the final summing up. But you couldn't convince the young men who bounce off their knees that there's any justice in that.

It runs [illegible] of this since where a [illegible] is [illegible] the [illegible] Harvard, is [illegible] and over the wall.

JACK SHARKEY used to get the [illegible] with [illegible] in [illegible] ton circles. He never went for the boy-girl [illegible] with [illegible] Where he is today. The bozo who did the boo-ing [illegible] really thought that they were [illegible] would get to [illegible] Tunney [illegible] way of the universe.

And, while thinking of it, J. Dempsey must be reflecting sadly today [illegible] would still be champion of the world if he had [illegible] Wills instead of Tunney. No [illegible] in the Brighton sailor. Dempsey was game and would have won out the same [illegible] proved to [illegible]

BABE RUTH'S salary is causing anguish and woe in the hearts of the baseball magnates. Every fan will be with [illegible] Babe if he does [illegible] for the meagre stipend, and the moans of the payers will be greeted with the coarse and raucous [illegible] of the mob. Mister Ruth has reached that where he wants it. They'll [illegible] come across to him and [illegible] like it or cut at the bankroll. As the [illegible] are sold [illegible] at their meetings:

What a beautiful game
Wouldn't baseball, forsooth,

LIONS TO TAKE DEFENSIVE IN OHIO GAME

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, Oct. 14.—It seems to be generally understood that one doesn't drive in [illegible] from first base with a spectacular [illegible] on balls nor score a touchdown by making the other goal [illegible] Therefore the writer is [illegible] believe that Columbia [illegible] will not be greatly [illegible] Saturday if it doesn't finish [illegible] second to Ohio State [illegible] Big Ten team ever to [illegible] New York.

The [illegible] Columbia today was [illegible] a defensive one. "We are [illegible] stopping power," [illegible] Crowley's summation [illegible] more one has apart last year. [illegible] has only seven men up and [illegible] without an adequate defense [illegible] opposing game. We are [illegible] to perfect a defense that will [illegible] only six men on the line [illegible] the centre rove."

LINE IS GOOD.

What Crowley might have said was that he was trying to accomplish two ends and that neither of them were easy. He hopes to stop a good line plunger with a set of inexperienced forwards and [illegible] to counter use a running attack of his own inside and outside of tackle. He hopes to have two fair plunging backs in Maddin and Size, but they will need to be better than that to effect with any degree of regularity behind a good line.

Columbia is not the team it was last year. Only three 1925 regulars will start [illegible] the game—Maddin and Size [illegible] at the end and Brady at end. Leased quarterback, is gone. So are Warner, a fine end, Kirchmeyer, a back, and Schlemitzsch, Wiberg, Anuck and Rinhard.

The only experienced forwards in the present squad are Reynolds and Allhoff and they have to [illegible] right side of the line a rather [illegible] [illegible] Hardly [illegible] pens to have two fair plunging backs in Maddin and Size, but they will need to be better than that to effect with any degree of regularity behind a good line.

Timpson Enters Wrigley Swim

Lynn, Oct. 14.—Louis Timson, the long-distance swimmer who gained wide recognition by his attempt to swim the English Channel this Summer and for his assistance to Gertrude Ederle in preparing her for her achievement, will be a contestant in the Wrigley ocean marathon to be held in Los Angeles Harbor some time in January, for a $25,000 prize.

Timson sent his entry to William Wrigley, Jr., and expects to leave here November 3 for the West Coast by automobile. His trip West and subsequent participation in the long-distance swim is to be more or less of a publicity stunt for the city of Lynn, according to his present plans. Before leaving for California, he intends to outline his plans to the local Chamber of Commerce and other organizations of the city.

Harvard to Cut Geneva Off Football Schedule for 1927 Campaign

By STED CHANDLER

GENEVA COLLEGE'S contemplated attempt to meet Harvard again on the gridiron has failed to materialize. The Crimson athletic authorities declined to accept the overtures of Graduate Manager Fred Moore today. Boston College was hinted also will be approached. The Heights management is not prepared to say what fate awaits a foe on the football schedule. Geneva manager Moore through the football committee continue its emphasized way of it must come to the slow process awaits consideration along state.

The Harvard athletic Medi, who put the ban of Geneva college and centers in the affairs of the policy, has a way the of ambition in Beaver Falls, Pa., and the to reveal a of its ambitions are streaking over the gridiron picture in all star's indice for 1927.

The array of talent the Pennsylvanians hope to meet includes Harvard and Boston College but in the case of Harvard at least there is room for considerable doubt as to the agreement of the party of the second part.

Graduate Manager A. A. Lodge-combe of Geneva announced sending Boston College one of its most Notre Dame, Syracuse, Harvard and Boston College, but to mention other teams who has caustic mind will doubtless encompass.

GENEVA TOO STRONG.

Harvard, however, comes as close to saying no as anyone can come without saying no. And this even before the Beaver Falls citizens have approached the Crimson on the subject.

Major Fred Moore, Harvard's graduate manager of athletics, said today that it is extremely unlikely that the Pennsylvania institution can be accommodated on the Crimson's 1927 schedule.

"I do not believe, stated the Major, "that Geneva will have a show of play ng Harvard next year. Of course, we have not been approached as yet, so there is nothing definite that can be said.

"But Geneva, I think, is a bit too stiff for an early season game. In fact she is much too stiff. She proved that conclusively enough. And as there is little chance of giving her a later date, she probably will have to stay off the schedule."

B. C. AWAITS NEGOTIATIONS.

Graduate Manager Frank Reynolds of Boston College knows nothing of Geneva's intentions, but would not say actually that B. C. would not consider the clan of McMillin as an opponent.

"We have not been approached," said Reynolds, "and I do not know whether or not there will be room for Geneva on next year's schedule, even if we are. I don't say one way or the other if we will consider Geneva as an opponent."

Geneva's seven, which battled Cornell to a 0 to 6 score on a muddy field, then upset the Crimson quite unceremoniously on its unsuspecting ear, has blazed across the gridiron sky as Bo McMillan has blazed over the same course ever since the first romped to fam on th stadium turf in 1921.

In the same manner that Center and Centenary felt their oats after a few brilliant splashes, Geneva now wishes to usurp the game's darkest heights. Hence the ambitious schedule in the process of conception at Beaver Falls.

GEORGE BURNS MOST VALUABLE A. L. PLAYER

Chicago, Oct. 14—George Burns veteran first baseman of the Cleveland Indians American League, has been chosen as the most valuable player in the American League during the season of 1926.

Burns a veteran of 13 seasons in the majors, was picked by the unanimous choice of a committee of baseball writers who made the award. He received 14 points out of a possible 16, three votes going to Ty Cobb, former Detroit star, and one to Al Simmons, White Sox outfielder.

Johnny Mostil, veteran leader of the Chicago White Sox, was second with 32 votes, while Cobb was third with 31 votes. Both Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth, New York sluggers, received two votes each.

Burns made a batting average of .358 for the season. He batted .378 in 123 games and 11 times he made four hits in one game. He batted .333 in 11 games in which he played in the world series. He batted in 114 runs, took part in 12 double plays, and had 1.96 put outs, 196 assists, and 19 errors. He scored 97 runs.

Burns made his big league debut with Detroit in 1913, served two years with Philadelphia and went to Cleveland, which sent him to Boston but got him back in 1924. For six years he has batted well over .300, his best mark being .361 in 1921.

Gridiron Notes

The Ohio State quartet of backs, Maree Karow, Hess and Eby are all set and ready to go against the Columbia eleven. Tots combination is expected to make it bothersome for the Columbia team in Saturday's game.

Coach Ray Lauck of the St. John's (Yonkers) eleven of New York is preparing strategy for their meeting with Cath lic University Saturday.

There is no certainty what lineup Coach Ted Jones will send against Dartmouth Saturday at New Haven when the Green and Blue teams meet. Just at present the backfield looks like Captain Bunnell at quarter, while Kane, Soule and Foote will do the bulk of the rushing.

Critics predict the Yale eleven will experience trouble with the Hune backers. There will be a certain kind of weakness in the Blue line with Van Heiling and Colwell rushing to play, while Wortham and Day are also out for another week at least.

Tufts is preparing for the game with Hobart at Hamilton, N. Y., Saturday, as minus a trio of good players. Two Medford collegians are looking for an early recovery of Captain Schroder, Brehaut at half and Casey Bruno. The latter will be out of action Saturday with the possibility of the other pair getting in part of the contest.

The majority of injured warriors of the Tufts organization including William Keyes, Labbe Smith, Roland Hong and Lawrence French, will be back in the lineup against Middlebury Saturday when the Back Bay University lads play their home game on Tufts Oval, Somerville.

M. Nanna and McKenny of Boston College will take light exercise for the re, mainder of the week at the Heights. The Eagles are preparing to make a drive on St. Louis a week from Saturday. This makes the third long journey for the B. C. football squad since Major Frank Cavanaugh has been at the Heights.

Pastebounds will cost the U. S. Military Academy boys $3.50 each of whom the Army gets $6,000 for the annual service game which goes to Chicago this season. A like number of the same price has been awarded the midshipmen at Annapolis. While the tickets can reach $10 a pair, approximately $10 per cent.

Connie Crooks of Manhattan College who has been out of the game for a couple of weeks has rejoined the squad in the meantime, Coaches Meehan and Patterson are preparing the line and scouting them the week-end that they made against Fordham last Saturday.

M. Wanamaker Penn's star full back, is back in the big injury list. He was injured against Chicago last week.

Navy's chances of victory against P. Boston came received a severe setback because of the loss of Annis, regular halfback star, from his lineup.

Cornell may use the Huddle system against Michigan on Saturday and in future games. The team has mastered the shift in this week's practice.

Princeton is not over-confident of defeating the Navy on Saturday following the varsity's poor showing yesterday. The regulars made only one touchdown against the scrubs.

GIRL JOCKEY WINS BRITISH PLATE RACE

Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—A girl jockey, Iris Rickaby, won the Town Plate today on Major F. B. Stapleton Brotherton's bay filly Stefania, by Stefan the Great, out of Peonia.

Of the other girl jockeys in the race Eileen Joel, daughter of the well known turfman Sol Joel came a second on her father's Hogen. She piloted to victory last year.

Miss Jane Vaughan's mount was placed third. The race established in 1665 by King Charles II., was run over nine miles. The stakes were only about £10, but the winning jockey and owner received cups presented by the townspeople.

Each participation of girl jockeys is possible in this event because it is governed by the Jockey Club.

Girl jobs do not walk the streets—they are listed in the Classified Section. See Help Wanted, Classification 50 and 51.

Sharkey to Force Title Bout; Delaney Challenges Boston Boy

New York, Oct. 14 (A.N.S.)—Gene Tunney's pearls will not be permitted to remain with him unchallenged for long, Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, made this known today when he announced that he would go before the State Athletic Commission on Tuesday and file a challenge on behalf of Sharkey for a match for the title.

Sharkey, who is as a logical challenger on Tuesday might be forced Harry Wills to foul him in the thirteenth round as was the case in the Dempsey-Wills fight, but Buckley also has a sweeping challenge today to Tunney. Sharkey, Wills and Jack Delaney.

Pete Reilly, manager of Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion also issued a sweeping challenge today to Tunney, Sharkey, Wills and Jack Delaney.

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—This isn't a society note, but Mr. and Mrs. Frank Born of the Racine, Wis., Borns, will undoubtedly be present when the Army and Navy elevens clash on Soldiers Field in Chicago November 27.

Two reasons for their presence will be found out there on the playing field, barring accidents and their names are Charley Born, an Army end, and Arthur Born, Middie guard. Their meeting will mark the first time in service gridiron history that brothers have appeared in opposing lineups. The parents have promised cheering both spontaneous and impartial.

CHAPTER XLIV

THEY parted at six o'clock, with resolutions for a soon reunion. "I'll call you up," said Fay from the taxi. "Been meaning to, anyway, but we've only been back from our trip two weeks—we went to Cuba, naturally, so Jimmy could drown his woes. We'll give you a buzz—you too, Bill Olmstead and Jock, you bring Yvonne when you come, and I'll make Julie and Jerry, my two chef d'oeuvres —"

New Year's Eve at Terrace Gay-ety looked, as Jock put it, "like a futuristic conception of a riot in an insane asylum," and sounded like no known thing. It fairly roared and vibrated and teemed. It was a cyclone of color, a turmoil of motion, a pandemonium and a hubbub, too. It was Tower of Babel, Hippodrome and Bedlam all rolled into one. Jock and Yvonne arrived [illegible] and [illegible] were [illegible] and [illegible] A few more women and two or three men went and overcame arrived. Their [illegible] some invisible shouted in a megaphone voice, "Next waltz, kids! She looked this way a minute [illegible] "Well, I don't say her the boy-and-girl sort, but in Kittens Mayo I was. And herein this, as she so well to hear everything Jock and Yvonne said to one another. "I know him. I was out with him once myself. Once was enough, let me tell! Perry Loomis, his name is. Champion All-American rank. He's been bounced from more good schools than any seven kids in history."

"He looks it," remarked Jock. Perry Loomis did look it. He was a plump, dissipated-faced youth, plainly well-lined at this moment. Jock summed him up in a sentence. "Natural born wet smack." And thought no more of him. He pulled out his watch and peered at it, and showed it to Yvonne in silence. Their eyes met comprehendingly. "Let's go," he said, dropping them one at a time to hit the sudden flame of them.

"Where you going?" cried Barney Blaine. "You're not going to leave us? Why it isn't 12 o'clock yet, even!"

"It's two minutes of," Jock announced. "We'll be back after a bit. Got a little matter to attend to back-stage."

Making of a Husband

By ANN LISLE

THE Dalton-Sturges Corporation," she enumerated between [illegible] sobs, "The Hallsbee Publishing Company, Peter Stanley & Co. There's only the Beattie Trust account left—and the Derringforth account."

I repeated the names she had mentioned. It seemed impossible. These were my friends. They couldn't—they wouldn't take away their businesses like this without warning. It must be a mistake to commence. A mistake! I said so.

"I'll show you their letters," Miss McBride whispered.

She got up and trotted out of my office with an air of relief, as if it were at least something to move about—to get into physical action. And when I was alone I sat and thought—hard.

A landslide! My three best clients had sent in letters of cancellation. There had been others before during the past few days. A week ago I left Jim. Could there be any connection? It was absurd. Why should there be a connection? Other women leave their husbands for less provocation than what had impelled me to go.

And these friends of mine—Peter Stanley, Loren Haldane, even our brother-in-law, Pat Dalton, had all made it plain two of three years ago that they felt I should not only leave, but divorce Jim. They couldn't be taking away their business patronage on that account. It wouldn't be logical. It would be [illegible]

"Yes" I decided. "It must be Miss McBride. She hasn't been giving satisfactory service. They are discontented. I will have to take full charge again. No expanding for the moment. First I must make them regain their lost confidence. I must show them—show them that A. L. Harrison, advertising consultant, can del ver the goods"

Then poor little Miss M. Bride, looking more wizened and old up than ever, and appearing twice her years, came in, bringing the letters. They were noncommittal. Impersonal. Each one was couched in polite and ambiguous phrases. Each one said that it would be impossible to renew contracts. Each one broke the news that a dissatisfied client was leaving me.

"Now do you see how I've failed you?" gasped my office manager.

I put my hand on her shoulder with a gesture which I recognized as benevolent.

"We won't say anything about resigning just now," I assured her. "I am going out and get back my lost clients. And then we can talk."

"If you get them back—" said Miss McBride strangely.

"Oh, I will," I reassured her.

But I didn't risk telephoning for appointments. Instead I set off with what I tried to make brisk assurance to see Pat Dalton.

It never occurred to me that he might not want to see me.

Amusing the Children

By LUCY LOWELL

"HOW shall I keep my little daughter amused?" a young mother writes. "She is three years old and into everything. She has plenty of picture books, puzzles and dolls, but she tires of all of them in no time at all. She tries to imitate my work when I am sewing or doing beadwork.

"It is likely to be educational for her? She is a restless little thing."

According to experts on child rearing, it is best to give a child only one plaything at a time — and to put it away the moment interest in it begins to lag. When it is brought out again it is quite new to the youngster, and therefore interesting.

An authority on child psychology advises mothers to give their little girls a piece of cloth [illegible] with a darning needle and wool yarn when they begin to show interest in sewing.

Bead stringing, however, wearies the active child, and the rather dull child should have something to do more stimulating to the imagination. The only sort of beads that should be given children are large wooden ones, the small glass beads being dangerous in many ways, especially as they put a great strain upon the sight.

A little girl of three who is restless and "into everything" would enjoy nature study. She may be taught to scatter crumbs about the door for the sparrows, and when she has become accustomed to them she will be ready to learn the names and something of the story of other birds which she may see on an expedition to the woods or through the [illegible]

WHAT YOU WANT AND CAN'T GET ALWAYS IS MOST DESIRABLE

IT IS the something you want and can't get that seems most desirable.

You see persons who possess what you want and they don't prize it.

You see persons who have what you want but when you know how hard and how long they have worked to get it you are not willing to do likewise.

You think if you had what the other fellow has you would be the happier, person alive but when you find it means self-sacrifice you are not so keen about it.

Then you begin to dream of some way that you could obtain the one thing you most desire through the kindness of Providence or the good will of some associate.

The more you dream of the easy way to get what you want the sooner you get into the dangerous frame of mind that thinks the world owes you a living.

You want to be in the lap of fortune—you want the golden egg

You tire too easily of continued effort to do anything worth while.

You want to spare yourself, you want to do what you want to do.

You have not learned that in serving others, in being industrious and unselfish lies success in getting what might be otherwise unobtainable.

MILDRED'S WATERLOO

By Gordon Sayre

MILDRED MONTVAINE was a pretty little girl—pretty enough indeed that [illegible] the plaudits of admiring [illegible]

Miss Montvaine [illegible] ed figure, but [illegible] pression. Despite [illegible] action, pale waxlike [illegible] ice effect [illegible] earned [illegible] emotion, [illegible] ments, she [illegible] merit [illegible] wave fear. Mildred [illegible] ter [illegible] known fear.

Raised in a New York [illegible] she had, at the age of six, been sent out dressed as a boy to sell papers. Gradually she had worked herself up through [illegible] experience, while employed [illegible] until at last she [illegible] sensation of a motion picture scout that he had asked her to sign a small "movie" contract.

Mildred rose rapidly in the film world.

At last they even tried her in pictures [illegible] by O'Gene Eumell, a writer with a mission. In these latter vehicles Mildred met her Waterloo. It was discovered that though she had some slight histrionic ability she could not register fear, for Mildred was afraid of nothing. Even Penny Mandelbaum, the owner of the company for which Mildred [illegible] and [illegible] stuff what this Irishman writes you ever to register something besides [illegible] the [illegible] you get [illegible] and progress. [illegible] to look scared now and the next. [illegible] Mike boys—she don't be afraid of nothin' [illegible] our show ain't never been a success to be scared. It'll [illegible] 5 year old baby to look scared [illegible] she simply don't know what you're talking about. We gotta somehow show that kid how to register fear. How are we gonna to do it—can you think of some way?"

For a long time the two men sat in silent communion with their Havana cigars. It was the inspired Mr Goldfish who finally broke the long and painful silence. He turned across the table and [illegible] last and unctuously to his boss.

"By Golly!" admitted Mr Mandelbaum [illegible] the other finished "I think you got a idea—you should be your own star. I'll see what I can put that over—"

Next morning when Mildred came down in the [illegible] lot, Mr. Goldblatt had a surprise for her.

"We're going down into Southern California, just you and me and Archie, and a couple of extras to shoot a scene with the Yaidro mountains for a background. little touch of realism—this guy Eumell is a slicker for realism. bawled us out awhile back because in a picture, we had a boat rockin' twict as fast as and then over rocked any boat—foolish about little things, this guy—says we can't use no no pine marbe mountains in his so [illegible] or he won't see us no more. Gotta send back some things and we'll go on our way."

So the group arised at Putnam [illegible] and started off for local [illegible] The road is like a relief map of Mesopotamia without any relief and the going was hard. Present [illegible], however, something happened that was harder. In the road, as recently before them, I've quoted men drew out in single file with shiny [illegible] guns carelessly across and [illegible] shoulders. They sailed for the [illegible] car to come up and then [illegible] remounted ominously.

Speedily they went through the pockets of all those present, who had pockets. Mildred [illegible] nered, but just as they had cleaned up and were about to mount and ride away, the leader stopped out.

"Wait a second."

He was looking Mildred over, for Mildred was a sight not be be over looked. Slim as a princess in her grey traveling suit, her deliciously white face touched with little rat [illegible] points of color from the long ride, she looked ten times as desirable as Adonis did to Venus. Out there among the rough hills and the rough men, in the battered, dusty touring car she was almost impossibly beautiful and desirable, like a scintillating ruby lying amid rough particles of jagged stone. The bandit chieftain leaned at her.

"Senorita, I [illegible] desired [illegible] rough [illegible] Mildred [illegible] ed [illegible] Jesse James at [illegible]

"Comere or this thing is liable to go off—in a nervous fit," Mildred [illegible] hesitated for a moment, and then she came there.

"Watch and think of Susa" next [illegible] received [illegible] and if you look around or gimme any rough talk I'll get [illegible] and you across the border in such a state that they'll never be able to decide in which country I murdered you." Mildred cast a glance around at Goodbaltz [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] alone, this was no time to get the gendarmerie".

Up the side of the steep hill the [illegible] of wrath a long hunting knife poised in her slender hands.

"Well, well," screeched Goldblatz, "what would cost us $50,000—don't do that for the love of—"

Then the difficulty Archie wrenched the knife from Mildred's fingers.

When Mr. Goldblatz returned to Hollywood and reported the huge lack of success of his plan to inculcate fear into Mildred's repertoire Mr. Mandelbaum was disappointed, but not wholly downcast.

"Ach, well" he decided. "If O'Gene Eumell wants her to know how to look scared—let him come out here and scare her himself."

Three Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

AMONG the most interesting of all the savage races are the Nagas, a tribe of people in Southeastern Assam. These people, although technically a savage race, have devised a plan whereby the work of the community is done with dispatch by the person best fitted for it.

They have placed all the men in what is known as "age-groups." From the day of his birth until his death, a man remains in the same group, and as he grows older his work and responsibility increase. To facilitate this, they have in every village what is known as a "morung." This is a long, thatched house or barracks, used as living quarters by the young boys and unmarried men, and as a club-house by all the men.

The morungs are interesting building. Although they differ in design among the tribes, they are all characterized by decorative posts and carved figures and animals. Some of them have a porch-like extension, which is used as a "sitting-out place," where the young men sit and smoke and chat. It is an important and surprising fact that a young Naga never seems to be bored or idle.

At the age of about eight or ten, the boys enter the morung. For three years they act as "tags" for the older group, and their hazing was at times almost brutal. At present, however, all physical forms of initiation are strictly taboo. One favorite trick of the older boys is to send out a new mate on a very dark night, without light or weapon of any kind, to fetch a bamboo from a designated spot, cutting it with a sharp stone, or more often biting through it with his teeth.

After a boy has served as a tag, he becomes a "blood." This means that he has passed through his period of boyhood and is now fitted to shoulder the responsibilities of a man. The duties of the men are to work in the fields, do the building and all the harder manual labor. They also take the greater risks. The older men are given lighter tasks to perform, such as weeding or basket-making.

It is easily seen what an ideal community this is, and to what a scientific these so-called savages have reduced their manner of living.

MEDBURY SAYS---

THIS is the time of the year when people are getting ready for the cold weather and the parlor radiators are tuning up for their Winter concerts.

A LANDLORD says he's not taking any tenants with false bridgework. His apartments are so chilly that their teeth are liable to chatter and keep everybody in the building awake.

ONE man was able to rent an apartment, however, by promising to leave his teeth with the switchboard operator at night.

SEVERAL radio stations have announced that they're going to help keep the public warm by broadcasting hot music.

FUEL is so high this year that a lot of people are mortgaging their homes to buy coal. Then they have to sell the coal to pay the interest on the mortgage.

THE weather man says this is going to be a tough Winter. Everybody who can afford it is going South. Those who can't afford it have already gone.

THE State of New York is thinking of heating Niagara Falls so that the poor people can fill their hot water bags for nothing.

ONE woman had to get rid of her Eskimo dog. She says he was so cold looking that all the cats got pneumonia.

SHE claims her flat was so chilly last year that she had to take the goldfish out of the bowl and use a can of sardines in their places.

THE only way her grandfather could keep warm at night was by building a fire in his pajamas.

HE can't wear woolen underwear because he's getting too old to squirm.

HE'S got the seven-year itch and has to devote all of his time to that.

BUT he'll soon be over it. He only has three years more to go.

HEAT is a hard thing to get right now. Instead of starting the furnaces, apartment house janitors are too busy making out lists of what they want for Christmas.

ONE man said he didn't feel the cold at all last Winter. He was numb from January until April.

BUT his apartment was so freezing that every time his wife perspired he had to knock the icicles off of her.

THE place was so cold that the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals made him take the polar bear rug out of the parlor.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

THE greatest trouble with woman, in this life, is that she never keeps her eye on the ball.

A man knows what he wants when he wants it—and goes right after it!

* * *

A woman knows she wants something—if she could only think where it is!

* * *

She wants but little—but she wants a little of everything. A little love, a little freedom, a little home, a little career, a little excitement and a little contentment. But she like sunflowers and shade flowers, these do not all grow in the same garden.

* * *

A man concentrates on the One Big Thing in life he wants, whether it's money, fame, art or just ease and amusement—and he usually gets it. A woman scatters her forces on a thousand little things—and then wonders why she has failed in the only thing worth while!

* * *

She cannot keep her EYE ON THE BALL! Whether it is a game, in business or in love, her attention is always wandering off on a detour. While she's playing cards she's carrying on a snappy conversation; while she's in church she's mentally pre-draping the dining room; while she's taking letters, she's thinking what nice eyes the boss has and while she's flirting with one man, she's dreaming of another!

* * *

She mixes gossip with bridge, social life with her religion, romance with her job and vanity or coquetry with her love! And all she gets is—HASH!

* * *

Keep your eye on the ball, Sister of mine! If you want love, go after it. But don't look for a limousine and the Lewis pearls along with it. Most men who can give you French dinners, diamonds and motor-cars have hardening of the arteries, rheumatism and a varicose vein of sentiment. They are not romantically inspiring.

* * *

If you want money, work for it or marry it—but don't expect Fate to hand you a fortune, with a Prince Charming attached to it. There is only one Prince of Wales—and he's not a marrying man, much less a Mormon.

* * *

If you want fame, glory, success, you can get it, by hard labor and the sacrifice of nearly everything else on earth worth having, but you can never get it by lying in bed until noon, and lunging around studios in dressing gowns, cadenzas and wounded celebrities, all night.

* * *

If you want love, petting, wild flirts, smash them—but don't expect them to last. They are only like candies, toilet ornaments or life's Christmas tree—and some bright morning you'll wake up to find them all vanished—and Santa Claus will be gone!

* * *

Choose your game in life—and keep your eye on the ball! Thats what a man does! And that's why a man nearly always gets what he wants, while a woman gets only the crumbs and the leftovers.

* * *

When Opportunity knocks at the door, don't be too busy powdering your nose or writing out the new menu, to answer the summons.

STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' olive Tablets. The pleasant, fruit-coated Tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them well. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the almost constant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c and 60c. All drug stores.

ASK THE BARBER

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By WILLIAM P. KIRK.

I WAS reading a Mother Goose book last evening, I am too old a wise for that kind of books only it happened to be in the house & I was reeding & thinking how foolish I used of been to like that kind of junk when I was yunger. One of the pomes in the book was this pome, Sing a song of sixpence,
Pookit full of Rye,
Four & twenty blackbirds
Baked in a pie.

Ma, I sed, why cant we nevver haf no blackbird pie?

It seamss to me you get pie enuff, Bobby? sed Ma. We haf apple pie & peech pie & Lemmon pie & blackberry pie & custard pie & raisin pie. Blackbird pie is a thing of the past, Bobbie, sed Ma. Kings may have eaten blackbirds, Bobbie, sed Ma, in the good old dayss, but lately they haf been eeting crow instead, sed Ma.

My mother used to maik blackbird pie, it seems to me, sed Pa.

No doubt, sed Ma. I guess wen you were a small yure folkss had to eat what you cud get, sed Ma. No dout yure father shot the blackbirds in the woods around yure lowly Cabbin, sed Ma.

Lowly Cabbin! sed Pa. Why, sez Pa, our house was the swellest house in the subscribed ward we lived, sed Pa.

It is to, sez Ma. Why, sed Ma, you forget that I knew you wen you was a boy & used to live the place you lived, too, sed Ma. You cant hand me anything about yure childhood & you cant say you were reered in the lap of Luckshury, sez Ma.

What is it? Luckshury, I sed.

It means piles of wurth & everything the hart desires, sez Bobbie, sez Ma. To most peeopul it is but a word & nothing more, sez Ma.

If I had everything my hart desired, I sed, I wuld haf sum blackbird pie.

The children of today are terribly spoiled, sez Ma. They want everything they see & everything they need about.

I know it, sez Pa. The children of today shud be hammered less a spanked more, sez Pa. Bobbie, sez Pa, you will please remember that you are to set what is put on the table for you to eat, & stop whining for blackbird pie, sez Pa. Do you hear me?

I shud say I do hear you, I cud hear you if I was at the North Pool, sed. Try to Lower yure voice, I sed.

I Believe I will try Lowering my hand Insted sed Pa, & wen he lowered his hand kind of hard I was under his hand. That is Jest my luck, but what is the use weeping, weep and you weep alone.

POE'S MOTHER

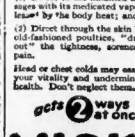
EDGAR ALLAN POE'S mother came of a line of actors, and there is little in her life to explain the cold trend that manifests itself in Poe's literary pursuits.

Her family name was Arnold, and with her first marriage she became Mrs. Hopkins. She and her young husband seemed to enjoy the approbation of the audiences at this time in her life, a fact which can be verified by glancing at the paper files in Petersburg, Norfolk and Richmond.

At the death of her first husband she married David Poe. They had three children, the second of whom was Edgar Allan Poe. There is a dearth of information regarding any influence that she may have had over her child.

The mother of the great artist had a bitter struggle for existence and, although she was undoubtedly talented, chronicles indicate that later in life she did not receive the appreciation which was hers at the beginning of her career. Her husband became consumptive, and a benefit was held to aid the family for they were in dire need. Shortly after this David Poe died, and it was not many days later that his wife followed him. Her life was recorded as one biography, one of labor, anxiety and poverty.

A Double Treatment for Colds



IT is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist the direct, double action of Vicks VapoRub. When it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts in two ways at once:

(1) Direct to the inflamed air passages with its medicated vapors, relieving by the body heat; and

(2) Direct through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the tightness, soreness and pain.

Head or chest colds may easily sap your vitality and undermine your health. Don't neglect them.

Fontainebleau Fish

Some Americans "Got in Wrong" With Frenchmen

THROWING CRUMBS TO THE ANCIENT FRENCH FISH AT FONTAINEBLEAU.

Many little lakes in the old French parks contain carp, interesting fish, said to live hundreds of years, so old that moss grows upon the backs of the oldest ones.

The French having had their luncheon in the park, carry crumbs left over and throw them to the carp that rise eagerly for the prizes.

Some carp, now living and eating crumbs, were alive when Louis the Fourteenth was planning the magnificent park and palaces of Versailles. They were eating crumbs when the king's mistress thought she would like to go for a sleigh ride in July, and the French king caused the drives in the big park to be covered deep with glistening salt that the lady might have the ride that she desired.

That was one of the things that led to the French Revolution. A great hardship in France was the Gabelle, a tax on salt, hard upon the poor. And if those poor went down to the edge of the sea, tried to get salt for themselves and dodge the tax, they were hanged for their pains.

It was one of the most stupid, brutal taxes of old Europe, which is saying a good deal.

Another was the tax on portes et fenetres, which means a tax on doors and windows.

For every door and window the Frenchman had to pay a tax. For that reason today you see thousands of French houses, and also Italian houses—the Italians paid the tax—with IMITATION windows. An imitation window paid no tax, so French and Italians slept in rooms without windows or any ventilation behind imitation windows to escape taxation.

But to come back to these carp in the pond at Fontainebleau, where Napoleon lived. You might not think it, but these innocent fishes have been the innocent cause of the dis like that the French have recently shown toward Americans.

The French take a few CRUMBS, throw them to the fish, and the fish are happy.

The French complain that Americans, ostentatious, squandering Yankees, threw entire loaves of bread or whole chickens to be eaten by the fish.

This naturally annoys the French, compelled by their government to show great economy in food, forbidden to have more than two principal dishes at any meal.

The fish-feeding Americans were foolish, as foolish as some others when they burned up French francs or plastered them on their luggage to show how little they thought of them.

Some Americans are foolish in Paris. Some of the French foolishly hate us. But all this will pass away.

And the old carp, let us hope, will live on in their cool waters and continue getting plenty of crumbs from the intelligent, brave French nation.

She Hates It

Others Like It

Mrs. Hall, whose husband, the Rev. Dr. Hall, was found murdered four years ago with Mrs. Mills, a member of his choir, is ordered with him, tells a reporter that she tries to be patient under all the publicity, and that she feels "like a gold fish in a glass bowl."

Mrs. Hall endures publicity and notoriety, with a dozen reporters sitting all day long on her front porch, as patiently as she can.

Ten million other Americans spend their time trying TO GET into that same publicity limelight and be the goldfish in the glass bowl. The eagerness of a man for publicity, whether he has done anything to deserve it or not, is one of the strangest peculiarities of the human primate.

We Have a Tariff

That Will Help

German steel makers sent 28,000 tons to this country in 1925. So far this year they have sent 128,000 tons, selling it here at less than it costs to make it. The German Government pays bounties to exporters to help re-establish German industry. And the United States makes private loans to the great German steel concerns, thus financing their operations.

Our elastic tariff law will take care of that situation. American industry and labor would be badly off without it.

I GUESS IT'S ABOUT TIME TO HAVE A COOLIDGE ON BEACON HILL
FEDERAL TAXES LOWERED BY COOLIDGE ECONOMY CAMPAIGN

O.P. Williams

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has made economy popular by proving that reducing the people's taxes increases their prosperity. There are millions of taxpayers in this State, who, like the citizen above, yearn for some real economy on Beacon Hill. You don't have to be a wizard to know where money spending will land us if it isn't curbed.

AUTO TRAFFIC IN 1950 A MARVEL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SPEED, and more speed, is the trend of auto traffic regulations.

Many States have raised the speed limit on State highways to forty miles an hour and some have set a minimum at which autos are allowed to travel.

If the present trend keeps up until 1950, here are a few guesses on conditions we may—or may not—have:

All roads will have high, banked turns like the turns of a speedway. The banking will begin half a mile from the turn.

High walls will have to be built on each side of the road to keep the crops from being blown down by the wind created by speeding traffic.

Enterprising advertising agencies will use these as continuous billboards. Because of the speed at which machines will pass, the words that broadcast the merits of perfume and ham will be written in letters half a mile long.

Because all the roads will be smooth and hard surfaced and there will be no bumps or ruts, making bodies raised high above the ground necessary, autos will be built close to the road and will go past like three-mile-a-minute turtles.

One-way highways from coast to coast will be in order.

In order to prevent each speeding car from killing its quota of citizens, towns will be elevated above the highways as railroads are today. (At first elevating the roads over the towns may be tried. But the danger from wild-eyed drivers who drop over the sides in battered machines will necessitate the change.)

Qualifying trials will be held to see if cars are fast enough to travel on the big highways. Each car will be given a ticket admitting it only to those highways it is fast enough to travel on.

On the big highways a driver who falls below two miles a minute will be arrested for obstructing the traffic.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE is a letter which will seem to have stolen up behind you on tip-toe and read your most secret thoughts. It is a page from the carefully hidden mystery and turmoil of your own mind. Yet the writer thinks her problem unique.

Dear Elsie:

My mother's people are uncultured, uneducated, even vulgarly common. My father's people are the reverse—educated, refined, genteel. If I were like either I might be happy, but through some unfortunate circumstance I inherited both personalities.

One day I have the finest thoughts, the highest aims, the most refined tastes. I associate with noble, gentle people and am "at home" with them. The obstacles of poverty and lack of education I easily surmount by a personality so pleasing that I make hundreds of friends in the best circles. I'm not trying to praise myself, Elsie, just trying to tell it just as it is, so that you perhaps can help me.

Another day, in spite of myself my mind seems small and mean. I'm suspicious and irritable. There is a great urge within me to visit some home where the children are ill-bred and messy, the house untidy and the woman vulgar.

I have an urge to sit there and smoke cigarettes while she tells me rude stories of her affairs. I appear to take a morbid delight in these things which disgust me so at times.

Love of Beauty

At times I have a passionate love for beautiful things. A beautiful room, a lovely flower, anything at all lovely. At these times I can draw pictures startlingly beautiful for an untutored hand. I can play a violin with great expression and feeling. I can furnish a room with colors blended so nicely that everyone entering speaks of the beautiful effect. A quiet, restful living room or a bright, sunny kitchen. In my other moods the more hideous a thing is the more appeal it has for me.

I'm bad, mentally rotten. I'm a mystery to my father, my poor long-suffering husband, and most of all to myself. I try, Elsie—make almost superhuman efforts—but I don't seem to get anywhere. I've lived twenty-five years and during all this time I haven't been able to better it. I hope you will understand and can help me. K. M. W.

You have "never been able to better it" because you have never believed that it could be bettered.

You have thought that you were made with a tragic difference from all other beings. You've looked at your own nature as you might have looked on a humped back, or a club foot, or some other pitiful deformity. And so, because you have always in the depths of your mind accepted yourself as incurable, you have been unable to change.

Not Incurable

But you are not incurable. You are not even the monstrosity you think you are. You're not "bad, rotten"—you're just a human being, with normal human beings' complex nature.

We all house Dr. Jeckylls and Mr Hydes—apes and angels—clowns and philosophers, always at war within us. And the richer the nature, the fiercer the war. Begin to think of this fact. As you walk out tomorrow look at the faces you meet. Behind those eyes lie natures as strangely tangled as yours. They too love beauty one day and correctly yearn for sordidness on the next. Yet they have conquered, and so can you.

But you cannot conquer if you keep saying to yourself, "I am different." You can only conquer if you say, "I am part of the great struggling, tortured body of humanity. My suffering is tied to their suffering. My dreams are part of their dreams. I need never again to feel lonely and accursed if I remember this. I can, instead, feel comforted by the thought that others fight with me, when I fight—and that every time I triumph for myself, I triumph for all humanity." And by thinking that, I can dignify and ennoble even the bitterness of my suffering, for I will see that it is part of a great drama—the tremendous drama of man's climb upward from the beast."

That isn't just a jumble of words, my dear.

It is the Truth. Try and understand.

In Place of the Primary?

Maybe What the Bosses Want Is the Cranston, R. I., System.

Perhaps what the gentlemen want who are crying out against the Direct Primary is something like the caucus which still prevails in parts of Rhode Island.

Rhode Island has NO State-wide law governing party caucuses, which are conducted under whatever rules the local committee sees fit to adopt.

Here are two of the rules under which Republican caucuses are held in Cranston:

"Rule 4.—The Warden of the caucus shall have the sole authority to decide who is entitled to vote in the caucus.

"Rule 5.— . . . and all rulings made by him shall be final."

No ballots were used in Thursday night's caucus in Cranston. All voting was by voice, by division or by the showing of hands. It was the warden's province to "declare the result" and no one could challenge his declaration.

Voters in Massachusetts and throughout Northern New England choose their own candidates and if THEY have anything to say about it will continue to do so. The would-be bosses, many of whom were errand boys for the real bosses of convention days, undoubtedly would prefer the Cranston system.

Jail, or Nice Trip?

It Depends on How MUCH You Steal

Edward Brooks and George Fiore, New Jersey boys, fifteen years old, caught two rabbits, took them home for pets, and let them go again, when told catching rabbits was illegal.

Nevertheless they spent three nights in jail. A judge with common sense let them go. Other gentlemen, more than fifteen years old, captured oil reserves belonging to the Government, and did NOT let them go. They haven't gone and won't go to jail. That's modern justice. Steal a loaf of bread—Jail. Steal ten millions—Trip to Europe.

Road Back to Childhood

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

WHEN the doors of the temple of science are thrown open to psychology, they are so wide apart that almost anything can enter. True scientific psychology bears a high and noble front, like a goddess entering among Olympian peers.

Unfortunately, she is attended—not to say dogged—by a crowd of self-asserted kith and kin who do her no credit, and whose pretensions are often of more than doubtful validity.

Quasi-psychological experimentation and speculation are so easy that, with a few technical terms at the tongue's end, almost anybody can set up for a psychologist, or a "Freudian," or what-not. All that is necessary is that it be sufficiently occult to enlist the imagination and novel enough to afford amusement.

Just how to classify the following example of "psychological investigation" I do not know. I hardly think that its scientific value is comparable with its appeal to human nature's undying fondness for curious coincidences and oracular knowledge. It is a story from a meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, held under the classic shades of Oxford.

This is the place, it may be pertinent to remember, where Roger Bacon, some six hundred years ago, earned for himself the fame of a magician by various performances and speculations, which, after all, were not so necromantic as his superstitious contemporaries believed.

Professor E. Bickworth Farrow undertook to instruct the great association's members in an easy way to trace their memories back to their babyhood. It was said to be so simple that anybody could do it.

You must write down "absolutely any and every thought that occurs to you for periods of one or two hours at a time," and you must continue this over a number of such periods.

That may not seem so very easy, after all, but Dr. Farrow offers a lure for the lazy in his description of the results:

"What happens is, apparently, that the memories of recent happenings become gradually worked off, and the mind gradually goes back further and further into the remembrance of incidents in one's early life.

In very many cases subsequent verification of these circumstances may be obtained from one's parents."

In view of the last sentence one may wonder whether it would not be cheaper and easier to ask your parents for recollections of your early childhood before undertaking so laborious and roundabout a method of finding them out for yourself.

Then if you tried the method and it gave contradictory results you would have a genuine subject for research in discovering who was lying.

Odds and Ends of the Town

By BERT FORD

Example is a big factor in life. Its influences are subtle, immeasurable. It can tear down or build. Try then never by word or act of yours to give bad example, above all, to the young.

A LOVER OF DOGS.

THE DUCHESS OF HAMILTON who will lecture against vivisection before the NEW ENGLAND ANTI-VIVISECTION SOCIETY in Huntington Hall on October 26, is such an ardent lover of dogs that she carries her pet with her everywhere. Her dog will be accorded a seat on the stage, an honor shown it at all of her lectures. The Duchess is the wife of the tenth DUKE OF HAMILTON. Her maiden name was NINA MARY BENTA. She has four sons and three daughters.

The REV. JAMES R. HOUGHTON, pastor of TREMONT STREET METHODIST CHURCH is a great believer in the sin-crushing power of music. Oratorios, anthems and special hymns are to feature special musical services throughout the WINTER. Choirs from AUBURNDALE and NEEDHAM HEIGHTS Methodist Church are to co-operate with PASTOR HOUGHTON'S choir in making his unique music revival a success.

GUILD OF THE HORSESHOE NAIL.

Buried in the asphalt sidewalk in front of Thompson's Spa, near the passageway leading to COURT SQUARE, is a horseshoe nail worn silver by shoe leather and the elements. Politicians have long swapped tips and confidences at this shrine. They deftly cross the nail with the toe of their boot and then talk politics. This is the mystic ritual of members of the "GUILD OF THE HORSESHOE NAIL."

The rendezvous for pols and sports has been nicknamed "EEL ALLEY." FRANCIS X. TRUDEL, candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, is one of the most ardent members of the GUILD. Others are WENDELL PHILLIPS THORNDIKE, oldest old age pensions and friend of dumb animals; WHITFIELD TUCK, the "Bard of WINCHESTER," and THOMAS F. PHELAN, president of MT. PLEASANT IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION. Former Assistant U. S. District Attorney WILLIAM H. LEWIS, football star at HARVARD, was one of the latest enrolled.

A SNAPPY MONTHLY.

We notice that GEORGE EDMONSTON of No. 44 Pilgrim Park way, QUINCY, has turned author. His article on individual co-operation published in the October issue of the NEW HAVEN SYSTEM MECHANICAL DEPARTMENT NEWS is timely and forceful. GEORGE is employed at the READVILLE shops.

HARRY A. LOCKERY, president of the System Mechanical Department Association of New Haven, editor; B. T. PEST, chief of the Department of Health and Recreation in New Haven, is associate editor, and LESLIE H. TYLER, special representative of the PUBLIC RELATIONS DEPARTMENT of New Haven, is publication manager. The special features are brassy and the magazine, as a whole, a credit to the NEW HAVEN ROAD and its employees.
